PA NEWC OBSERVES

According to statements made by Pittsburgh leaders, the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the lake coal rate case, as handed down on Saturday, means a considerable boom in the Pittsburgh-to-lake-ports coal business in the future. All of which will mean greater business for the lines going through this city.

In accordance with announcements made some days ago, operations at the National Radiator plant begin on a six-day basis today, while at the plant of the American Can Company a night turn is added to operations tonight.

At the best breakfast is a solitary meal to most of the business men of New Castle. They must be up and stirring before their wives are up, or so it seems to one who eats in restaurants. In the morning these men hurry in, and between huge gulps of coffee and bites of waffles equally huge, they read the morning paper, frowning as they see something that does not particularly strike their fancy, or grinning when they turn to the comic page.

During the past 10 days or more Pa Newc has made quite a study of the comic strip and its effects on the more solemn of the burghers. There is a group which looks sour, but after reading the first page of any paper these will turn to the comic section, and their satisfy their libido to salute the boss by a well aimed kick on the trousers or something equally out of their usual realm. Then there are those who will grin at the strips now and then, while others will laugh out loud. But, all in all, the comic strip is one of the greatest levelers of the human animal that we have.

One of the companies of the city has taken to having pep meetings of its staff just before the business day starts. They claim that in this manner the force will be more willing to meet the trade and can give them better and more efficient service if they believe in the product which they are selling. Pa Newc believes that it is a good idea, since it eventually will put personality into the business.

And there is a bachelor friend of Pa Newc's who soon is to join the ranks of the benedicts. The change that it has made on the boy is rather remarkable. Where he used to talk of drawing to a Kentucky straight, now he tells this column how he spent Saturday evening looking over rugs and bedroom suites. And already he has begun to complain about the high cost of living, which gives his conversation a connubial aspect.

While most of the ashed roads in Lawrence county have been badly cut up this winter, due to the frequent freezing and thawing, there is one road that has stood up well, the road east of the Wilmington road, at the Mitchel schoolhouse. Supervisors in that district must have some especial method of keeping the road in condition, for it is in excellent shape, despite the open winter.

People who usually depend on street cars to take them home Sunday noon were somewhat rudely surprised yesterday when they saw the immense crowd that had congregated on North Mill street, all waiting for the car. And the car was a trifle late. When it arrived as many or more people were left stranded, waiting for the next, as had gotten on the car.

It is too bad that the zoning regulations that prevail in New Castle are not effective in the immediate outlying sections adjoining the city. These districts will at some time in the future all be a part of the city of New Castle, and in everything but in

Arrest 28 Persons In Mail Robbery; Recover Big Sum

Chicago Police Believe Sensational Robbery Has Been Cleared Up

EIGHT WOMEN ARE HELD AS SUSPECTS

Raid On Flat This Morning Nets $18,000 More Of Stolen Money

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—With most of the participants under arrest and and a large amount of the loot recovered, the sensational $133,000 Grand Trunk mail robbery, staged Saturday morning at a South Side suburban station, was practically cleared up today, according to high police officials and postal inspectors assigned to the case.

All of the loot was in currency, packed in two sealed mail pouches. More than half of the stolen money is believed to have been revovered. The latest cache was discovered early today in a police raid on a flat several blocks from the scene of the holdup. Eighteen thousand dollars were recovered there and three women, found in the place were arrested.

This brings the total arrests in connection with the robbery to 20 men and eight women. Two of the men and one of the women have made complete confessions according to Deputy Police Commissioner William E. O'Connor.

A man, widely known as an attorney and politician, was said to be implicated in the confessions. He not only knew of the robbery plans, according to the statements, but participated in distributing the loot.

Two Confess.

Another man, prominent in local politics, is said to be involved in the case. He is being sought by police and government agents.

The two men who have made complete confessions, according to Deputy O'Connor, are Charles Cleaver and William Donovan. O'Connor regards them as the "brains" and ring leaders of the gang of seven men who actually staged the daring holdup.

The money was being shipped from Chicago banks to banks at Harvey, a southwestern suburb, for the purpose of meeting week-end industrial payrolls. It was in two consignments, $80,000 in one pouch and $53,000 in another.

Resume Tracing Of Liberty Bonds In Big Oil Deal

New Trail Lined With $6,000,000 Followed By Senate Committee

SERIAL NUMBERS AID TO PROBERS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—A new trail, lined with $600,000 of the Continental Trading Company's $3,080,000 Liberty Bond "slush fund", was being followed today by government agents under the direction of the Senate Oil committee.

The committee expected to gain access to the numbers of these bonds through the records of their sale by three New York brokerage houses to the Continental. To date, the committee has been unable to trace the bonds, because it had no record of their serial numbers.

Armed with the serial numbers, government experts will attempt to trace the bonds to their present holders, with the aid of the treasury officials. This can be accomplished if any of the holders cashed the interest coupons, which revert ultimately to the Treasury.

The committee will meet again probably Thursday. Officials of the Western Oil Fields Corporation, of Denver, probably will be summoned for that session. The Denver concern had an oil contract with the Continental and the latter concern may have obtained some of its "profits" from the deal.

(International News Service)

MELBOURNE, Fla., Feb. 27.—Coast guard vessels today resumed their search for the flivver plane in which Harry Brooks, chief test pilot for the Ford Motor Company, lost his life in attempting to fly from Titusville to Miami Saturday. The body has not been recovered.

Scores of vessels took up the search with the dawn today, while hundreds patrolled the beach in the belief that Brook's body may wash ashore.

Melbourne, Fla., Feb. 27.—The ill-fated flivver plane in which Harry Brooks, chief test pilot for the Ford Company apparently lost his life in attempting to fly from Titusville to Miami late Saturday drifted on the beach near here today.

The plane was found on the beach about sixteen miles below here, just as a dozen coast guard vessels and fishing schooners were to resume their search for the ship which suddenly disappeared Sunday while efforts were being made to haul it ashore.

The body of Brooks was not found in the plane, confirming stories of eye witnesses that the pilot was seen

Great U. S. Dirigible Is Enroute To Panama

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Sailing serenely through the tropic night, the great dirigible Los Angeles was well on her way to a non-stop flight to Panama this morning.

The big silver ship reached and passed Nassau, in the Bahamas, at 1:15 o'clock this morning, and a short time later Lt. Com. Rosendahl, commanding, advised the Navy Department by radio that he was striking for Panama.

If no mishap occurs, and if the weather is favorable the Los Angeles will reach the Canal Zone about 4 o'clock this afternoon, completing the longest trip she has undertaken since she was flown across the Atlantic from Germany.

No speed record is being attempted. The trip, Navy officials explained, is merely to try out the air worthiness of the dirigible on a "long practice cruise."

Makes Good Progress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The naval dirigible Los Angeles is making steady progress on her non-stop flight to Panama.

A message to the navy department this morning from Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl, aboard the dirigible, reported that she had passed Santa Cruz Del Sur (Cuba) at 6:40 a. m. and that the weather was favorable.

A later wireless from Commander Rosendahl reported the big dirigible was off South Negril Point, Jamaica, at 10:075 E. S. T.

The message said the ship had averaged 50 miles an hour from Cuba to that point and had about 650 miles to cover before arriving in Panama. On this schedule, navy officials said the Los Angeles would be due in Panama about 10 o'clock tonight.

Plan Reception.

COLON, Feb. 27.—An enthusiastic reception was arranged here for the United States navy dirigible Los Angeles which is due late today after a 2,200 mile non-stop flight from Lakehurst, N. J.

Under favorable weather conditions the Los Angeles should arrive between 4 and 5 o'clock.

The enthusiasm of the United States military authorities and the civilian population recalled the arrival of Col. Lindbergh on his Latin-American good will flight.

Woman, Aged 80, Is Killed By Fall On Stairs

Mrs. Margaret Rowland Supposed To Have Become Dizzy Or Tripped

FUNERAL SERVICES AT CROTON CHURCH

Mrs. Margaret Rowland, aged 80, widow, of the late Alfred Rowland, was almost instantly killed Saturday evening when she fell down a stairway at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert E. Walker of 228 Smithfield street.

Mrs. Rowland had apparently been in her usual good health on Saturday and on Saturday evening ate a hearty supper. Sometime afterwards she went to the bath room to take a bath. The next that members of the family saw of her was when they heard a noise on the stairs. Running to the stairway they found that Mrs. Rowland had fallen the entire length of the stairway. A physician was summoned but she was dead when he arrived, her neck evidently having been broken by the fall. It is believed that after leaving the bath room that she either became dizzy or tripped at the top of the stairs.

Mrs. Rowland was born in Germany on March 12th, 1848. She came to this country with her parents when she was a little girl. During the greater part of the time she has resided in New Castle she lived in the Croton district, until the death of her husband about 12 years ago.

She was a members of the Croton M. E. church and was well known in that section of the city. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Albert E. Walker, and Mrs. Edward Robinson of this city, and one son, Charles E. Moore of the Wilmington road. Also by twelve grand children and seventeen great-grandchildren. Funeral services Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. from the Croton M. E. church. Interment at Oak Park cemetery.

Centurian Scores Young Flappers For Smoking, Manners Are Shocking

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Feb. 27—Miss Mary Hogan, 105, of Chicago, calmly puffed at her corn cob pipe here today and decreed that all flappers belonged in jail.

"All flappers have bad manners—the impudent little snips with their cigarettes, gin and bad manners—they ought to be put in jail," she said.

Miss Hogan is in full possession of all her faculties, reads daily newspapers, magazines and books, keeps abreast of the times and is patiently waiting until spring so she can resume her daily walks. Not only that, but she does all her own housework and washing.

"Nope, I'm not bothered with the morals of flappers but only their bad manners," she declared. "I long for the old-time girl who knew how to blush instead of neck.

"But flappers will soon be 'passe' and we'll have a quiet world again. People are going to get tired of her. For a time they thought the flappers were cute. They aren't. They're only bad mannered—smoking in public.

"It's all right to smoke, I think," she added as she puffed on her corn cob, "but never in public."

Miss Hogan, who was born in New York in 1823, said she expected to live for 25 years longer.

Mrs. Lindbergh Central Figure In Convention

Gold Emblem Will Be Given Mrs. Lindbergh; Under Guard In Boston

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, school teacher, mother of the "lone eagle", was the central figure today at the opening of the annual convention of the National Educational association.

Although she desired to attend some of the 32 separate meetings with the 15,000 other delegates as an ordinary school teacher, the Detroit woman found herself so immensely popular that special arrangements were made to make sure that no accident befalls her while she goes about the city. A policeman detailed to guard her.

Discuss Problems.

Recognition of dull pupils, importance of intelligent tests, advocation of changes in school mechanics, objectives to education—both mental and physical—and the importance of character guidance, were among the subjects stressed in addresses at the various convention meetings today by famous educators from all sections of the country.

Mrs. Lindbergh attended some of the meetings. At the closing session of the convention, March 1, she will be presented with the association gold emblem medal in recognition of the aviation achievements of her son. The latter is expected here that evening.

Colonel Charles Lindbergh's mother flew here from Detroit with Miss Maude Dawson, who like Mrs. Lindbergh, is a teacher in the Cass Technical high school, that city. Superintendent Frank Cody of Detroit headed a big delegation of welcome. The plane was flown in zero weather by Lieut. Albert Hagenberger, the Pacific flyer, and Lieut. Harry Johnson

Baltimore Chemical Company Fire Loss Is Over $300,000

Three Blocks In Southeastern Section Of Baltimore In Fire Ruins Today

(International News Service)

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 27.—Three blocks in the southeastern section of the city were in ruins today as a result of a spectacular fire last night which firemen fought for hours to overcome. Dynamite was used to check the progress of the flames. The principal plants destroyed were owned by the Bowker Chemical Co. Loss will run about $300,000.

A hundred firemen narrowly escaped death when shouts warned them beneath a falling brick wall.

Twenty-one fire companies and two fireboats fought the blaze, which destroyed four buildings of the chemical company and threatened the wooden plant of the American Agricultural Chemical company until dynamite was resorted to.

The plant was ablaze when the first fire company arrived, and large stocks of chemicals stored for spring orders fed the inferno which in an hour wrecked a quarter million dollars in damages. Early today the ruins were still smoking, and a squad remained on duty.

Damage was covered by insurance.

The Bowker company is a subsidiary of the American Agricultural Chemical company, and maintains offices in New York City.

Plane Carrying Two Persons Disappears, Flying Seaward

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Mystery today still shrouded the fate of the two occupants of the plane which disappeared after flying seaward late Saturday afternoon to meet an incoming trans-Atlantic liner.

The plane, A Waco 10, carried Walter Hendricks of Kew Gardens, N. Y., the pilot, and an unknown passenger. Ships and aircraft were still searching the waters in the vicinity of New York today but as yet no trace of the plane has been found.

It was presumed the plane went to meet the George Washington, the only liner arriving Saturday afternoon. Officials of the ship, however, reported that they had not seen any trace of the plane.

The passenger was believed to have been David Staggert, but there was no confirmation of this. It was reported that he had asked Hendricks to pilot him out to the vessel so that he might wave a greeting to his sweetheart who was arriving from Europe.

"We have found the clues we were after," they said. "The murderer is the same man who used to come over here from New York often about 12 years ago, and who got into a little trouble here."

Central Pennsylvania Mine Strike Area Being Toured Today

SENATOR GOODING SCORES CONDITIONS

Says Strike-Torn District Conditions Are Blotch On U. S. Civilization

By KENNETH CLARK
International News Service Staff Correspondent

INDIANA, Pa., Feb. 27.—Conditions in the strike-torn Pittsburgh soft coal fields "are a blotch upon American civilization," Senator Gooding (R) of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Coal Investigating Committee, declared here today.

Gooding's statement was issued after consultation with the three other senators accompanying him and was the first public report by the committee on its five-day investigation in the coal region.

Cinditions Inconceivable

"It is inconceivable that such squalor, suffering, misery and distress should be tolerated in the heart of one of the richest industrial centers of the world," Gooding said.

"The committee found men, women, and children living in hovels which are more unsanitary than a modern swine-pen. They are brooding places of sickness and crime.

"They constitute fertile fields for the sower of communism and other doctrines which teach the overthrow of the American government. Industrial leaders of America cannot permit such conditions to continue.

"The dispute in the Pittsburgh soft coal fields is more than a local fight between a union and a group of coal operators. It is an industrial war that affects conditions which the committee has found in its first-hand survey in the coal mines and camps."

In Central Pennsylvania

The committee today turned its search-light on the Central Pennsylvania fields. It was particularly interested in the injunctions issued by Judge J. N. Langham of the State

Volant Literary Team Wins Contest

Mistake Made In Announcement Of Winner At County Superintendent's Office

According to Prof. Caldwell of the Volant high school there was a mistake in the announcement given out at the office of the county superintendent of schools Friday as to the outcome of the literary contest between Volant and Wampum high schools at Volant Thursday evening.

The report stated that Wampum won when the result of the contest showed that by a 3-2 vote Volant was the winner.

This does not alter the final result of the three year high school contest for the county, Wampum being the winner as announced.

The Wampum-Volant contest was a spirited contest and it was very close. The victory is all the more appreciated by the Volant contestants for this reason.

Brothers Plot To Kill Doctor Or Children Unless Given $1,000

(International News Service)

L. Bittner, prominent local physician, under threat to kill the doctor or one of his three children.

ARREST 28 PERSONS IN MAIL ROBBERY; RECOVER BIG SUM

for the Chicago district, declared he was prepared to go before the federal grand jury today "and obtain indictments as fast as the jury can vote them."

An outstanding result of the quick police cleanup is the apparent solution of the recent time-lock bank robberies. In the loot recovered at Cleaver's home were a number of bonds identified as those taken from the private bank of Joseph Fakete & Sons on February 2. Train robbery currency to the amount of $17,000 was also recovered at Cleaver's home, O'Connor said.

Just what part of the train robbery loot has been recovered in the series of raids on half a dozen homes, Deputy O'Connor would not say. The exact sum will not be announced, he said, until the investigation is completed.

From their captives, police learned the loot was divided into seven shares of $17,000 each, with $14,000 set aside as a legal defense fund in case of emergency. All but two of the actual bandits are said to be in custody.

Information that led to the gang's downfall is said to have come from Mrs. William Donovan, wife of one of the men held. She is said to have talked freely to police after becoming enraged over the conduct of her husband.

Another incident which hastened the roundup was Charley Cleaver's haste to celebrate the "successful holdup". He bought a few drinks and then called his "sweetie". Police wire tappers were listening in.

Boy Is Victim Of "Unloaded" Gun

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 27.—Staging a game of "wild west" in which he and his brother were the participants, Andrew Crawford, 5, of California is in the Brownsville hospital with a bullet wound in his left shoulder. The wound is considered rather serious. This was just another instance of "didn't know it was loaded."

Andrew and an older brother were putting on a holdup scene when the gun was snapped and the younger boy screamed as the bullet struck him.

Rev. Thomas Houston, the blind evangelist, who has just completed an evangelistic campaign in the seventh ward churches, was the speaker at the bi-monthly meeting of the New Castle Ministerial association Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A.

Rev. Houston spoke on "God's Providence," dealing with his own individual life. He gave a most vivid story of the way God had dealt with him and how he had been led since he became blind at the age of 18 years.

The meeting was especially well attended.

a legal manner are part of the city at the present time. Considerable improvement in the way the suburbs are being built up would be provided if progress was under zoning regulations.

By no manner or means can New Castle be called a city of strap hangers, for these things are almost nonexistent in the local street cars. As a result people have to clutch to the seat of those who are lucky enough to be sitting, which makes everyone a trifle uncomfortable.

In addition to the fact that weather conditions were near zero Saturday night, there was some peculiar condition in the atmosphere that made auto driving hard. Cars were inclined to frost over on the inside of the windshield and it was with difficulty that drivers could keep the glass clear enough to see out.

Note in the future biographer of this jazz age: In this, the day of pocketless dresses, what to do with her handkerchief has caused endless worry to many a comely lass. But Pa Newc believes that the difficulty has been solved. Yesterday he saw one of the more staid young ideas whip her hankie out of her stocking.

VIGNETTES—The First National Bank of Lawrence County's new addition is progressing even faster than at first was thought. Brick and stone work have been completed and work on interior partitions has been started . . . . East Washington street . . . . With the clatter of a mechanical piano grinding out Chopin . . . . And next door the phonograph playing something about a red hot baby . . . Cars race up the Lutton street hill, stop momentarily, and then, even faster, swirl down Washington street . . . . But he who stands at the rear of the Scottish Rite Cathedral and looks south can understand the spirit of New Castle . . . It is a study in white and black, a study of steel and the Great God Tin . . . . In the sky above the furnaces it is red at night . . . . And it is progress.

This is the last call for those who will celebrate a birthday on Wednesday, Feb. 29, to get in on Pa Newc's birthday list on Wednesday. Quite a large number of names have been reported for this list. Pa Newc would also request that all births on February 29 be reported immediately to The News editorial rooms on that date.

Once a year the pupils of the New Castle schools are given a thorough examination by the school doctor, Ralph M. Campbell and the school nurse, Emma Dodds, one of the examinations which we observed Friday afternoon. Each child is weighed and the weight compared with the height and if found underweight recommendation made whereby the weight may be increased. Then the teeth and throat are examined and if tonsil conditions recommend an operation record is made and a recommendation is made to the parents. Eyes and the hearing are examined as well as the lungs are tested and the heart examined for any irregularities. It is hoped that soon the board of education may supply personnel enough to follow up needed cases.

standing on the wing of the ship, waiting for a chance to jump before the craft hit the waves. Ford Company officials had said Brooks was strapped to his seat.

A truck was dispatched to the scene and the plane will be brought into Melbourne. According to first reports, the plane was not badly damaged.

Brooks took off for Miami late Saturday to complete his flight from Detroit. He had been forced to land at Titusville by a leaking gas line and also to repair his propeller. It was the second time Brooks had attempted a non stop flight from Detroit to Miami, the first attempt having ended when he was forced to land in North Carolina.

Voting Machine Is Demonstrated

Rotary Club Members See Invention At Sesson At Noon

A machine whereby votes can be cast almost automatically by the voting public was demonstrated to the members of the New Castle Rotary club when they met at The Castleton for their regular Monday luncheon and meeting by Roy Gustavson of Jamestown, New York. At the general election in November 1928, an amendment will be voted on by the people which would authorize the state to make the use of voting machines optional in the various districts of the state.

The voting machine, as demonstrated by Mr. Gustavson, has been in use in many of the communities of the United States for the past 30 years, the first one being put in use in New York state in 1897. Today 80 per cent of the cities in New York state use the machine. Many of the mid west and far western states also use the machine.

Quick and easy voting is the main advantage of the machine, as explained by Mr. Gustavson. It also provides secrecy for the voter.

When the voter goes into the booth, an election official releases a catch, whereby the voter can pull a red lever at the top of the machine to the right, thus unlocking the apparatus and make ready for casting his ballot. On the face of the machine there is the party ticket, with one line of levers for each party, marking the political candidates: On the extreme left of the machine there is another row of keys, which may be used for casting a straight ticket. The voter then proceeds to cast his ballot by pulling down levers under the candidates name for whom he wishes to vote. When he has finished, he pulls the red lever back to the left, recording the vote on special counters at the rear of the machine, and leaves the polls.

At the close of the election day the back of the machine is opened and the votes registered are copied on a tally sheet by the election board.

This provides for immediate election returns. Four protective measures against possibility of an election fraud are also incorporated in the machine. Another place to vote for people who are not on any party ballot is also provided.

At the next meeting of the club, the time will be devoted to a business session. A meeting of the board of directors will meet Monday, March 5, at 11:30 at The Castleton to plan for a reorganization of the club.

INSPECTION TRIP OF SENATE PROBERS NEAR CONCLUSION

Court of Common Pleas. One of the restraining orders prohibited the striking miners from congregating to sing hymns in the yard of the Magyar Presbyterian church as Rossiter, 28 miles from here. The miners also were enjoined from picketing, marching or inserting advertisements in newspapers about the strike.

The Magyar church, a rather small, dirt-covered building, stands like a lone sentinel on a hill overlooking the entrance to one of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation's mines. It had been the habit of strikers to gather in the church yard each day in the morning at at 3 o'clock in the afternoon to picket non-unionmen on their way to and from work.

Hostile Demonstrations

Among the songs the miners sang was one containing the line, "I'm on the Winning Side With Jesus," and another with "We'll Get You Bye and Bye."

Judge Langham explained to the committee that these constituted "hostile demonstration."

"Aren't these injunctions pretty drastic?" asked Senator Wagner, (R) of New York.

"Yes, I guess so," replied the judge, "but we issued the injunctions to get the miners into court to see just what they were doing out there."

No hearings have been held on the injunctions, although they were issued last August.

"I think it's mighty funny that the strikers aren't pressing for a hearing," said Judge Langham. "I'd think they'd be clamoring for it. My impression is they don't want a hearing."

"I think it's getting into dangerous ground to issue injunctions against singing church hymns," interposed Senator Wheeler, (D) of Montana.

Judge Langham declared he recently bought some hymn-books for the strikers, and "exhorted them to use the church for religious purposes.' He denied vehemently he was interested in mines covered by the injunctions, but said he had some mine stock. Miners told the committee they have been unable to get Judge Langham to set a hearing date.

Todays itinerary included Rossiter, Clymer, Commodore and Arcadia. The committee will leave for Washington late tonight.

Scout Leaders Meeting

A meeting of the Lawrence County Scout Leaders Club will be held this evening at the First Presbyterian church of Ellwood City, beginning at 6:30 o'clock. This meeting will be in the form of a dinner, followed by a business meeting.

This will be one of the most important meetings of the year because at this time of the year the scouting program is at its best and activities are carried out on a large scale and in great numbers. All details of the camporee will be threashed out. Scout circus plans will be completed, the annual election of officers will take place, the parts the Scouts will take in Big Boys' Week program in April will be given out, the spring roundup and intertroop contest meets will be discussed and the camp schedule for troop periods will be arranged. The program also includes several other matters that must come up for discussion at this meeting.

Because of the importance of these meetings all the troops are represented at each meeting of the club, usually by the scoutmaster and assistant scoutmasters, but in case of necessity by a member of the troop committee.

Ralph F. Davis, president of the Scout Leaders Club, is expecting a full attendance at the meeting to be held this evening, also, and he stated today that he would be very much disappointed if this meeting did not prove the best ever held by the clubs, including the Ellwood and the New Castle clubs.

TROOP 14.

Boy Scout troop 14 of the Lawrence County Council held the regular weekly meeting of the troop Friday evening at the Y. W. C. A. The opening exercises were in charge of Senior Patrol Leader Fred Wilkes, Jr.

According to the record of the scribe a full attendance was present at this meeting. Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Harold Morgan took down the good turns and it is plain to be seen by the type and number of good turns that the scouts of this troop are entering scouting in the correct manner and are getting out of it the good qualities that it holds in brief, character building and good citizenship.

Announcements were given by Scoutmaster Fred D. Wilkes. During the patrol meeting several tests were passed, making eligible several scouts for the next board of review to be held by the council. Drills and games were also part of the program.

The meeting was closed by a short prayer led by the chaplain of the troop and the bugler sounding taps.

Scribe, Wallace Anderson.

Loses Part Of Ear During Big Fracas

Officers Dukes and Thompson answered a call to 1816 Moravia street, the home of Anna Spencer, last night and found Louis Valley, with part of his ear torn off. They learned that Valley had participated in a fight at 1810 Moravia street, in which some ten or twelve men participated and said to have been started over Tony Natale, the police state. Valley had gone to the aid of Natale, when he was so terribly used up.

A physician was called and dressed his injury and owing to the fact that he had been kicked on the head during the fight. He was ordered to the New Castle hospital for further examination as it was feared that he might have sustained a fracture of the skull. A charge of disorderly conduct has been made against Valley.

The officers in the course of their investigation found the car of Natale, they report, but could not locate him. Valley's ear was chewed off in the fight.

Louis Di Domenic And Son Arrive

Mother To Follow; Left New Castle For Italy 13 Years Ago

Louis di Domenic, 72, former resident here, who returned to Italy about 13 years ago, has arrived with his youngest son, Andy, at the Domenic home, 206 South Liberty street.

The lder di Domenic was met Thursday at Ellis Island by his other sons, Tony and Frank, and daughters, Mary and Rose.

Mrs. di Domenic did not accompany her husband to America owing to an irregularity in the papers.

However, it is believed that the clerical irregularity will soon be overcome and the mother can rejoin the family.

They are parents of five children and grandparents to 28 children. Andy, the 14 year old son, was born in this country.

The elder di Domenic was met in the vicinity of Naples, Italy.

Special Meetings At East Brook U. P. Church Draw Crowds

Dr. L. K. Peacock Opens Three Weeks Series Of Meetings, Sunday

A crowded house greeted the evangelist, Dr. L. K. Peacock, as he opened a three weeks' series of special evangelistic meetings Sunday, February 26 at the EastBrook United Presbyterian church.

At the morning service held at 11:00 o'clock Sunday, Dr. Peacock brought to the members of the church a message on concentrated prayer as the chief requirement in a successful series of meetings.

In the evening an expectant audience filled the church, all available space being taken as the evangelist brought his message. Dr. Peacock made no announcement yesterday as to what his themes for the meetings would be, but said that he was going to preach the truth as he saw it and whether he offended or pleased he was there to bring a message of truth.

After the morning service, Dr. Peacock led a choir of several voices in a rehearsal of music. Being a fine song leader himself, especially fine music is promised for the series of services, Dr. Peacock putting a great enthusiasm in the singing.

NEGRO IS FINED

When officers sought Clarence Fears, negro, said to have threatened the life of his sister-in-law with a revolver, Sunday night, they found that he had left his own headquarters on Center street. They found him a short distance away at the home of his brother Randolph. He admitted having had a gun but claimed to have dropped it at the home of his brother. It could not be found by the police. This morning he was fined $10 by Mayor William H. Gillespie on a charge of disorderly conduct, which he paid.

WOMEN'S VOTES

PRELIMINARIES of the 1928 presidential campaign call attention to the fact that women, so far, have not been the political factor they were expected to be.

Eight years ago the women had the politicians worried. Most of that worry is over. In national elections since 1920 not more than 40 per cent of eligible women voters have gone to the polls. About 67 per cent of men voters cast their ballots.

There has been no indication of a sex cleavage in politics Most women have voted as did their fathers, brothers and husbands. When they entered politics, they played the game according to the old man-made rules.

So far women have not held many offices. Most of the handful sent to congress got there because their husbands were removed by death or other reasons. One woman ascended to the office of governor when it was made vacant by the impeachment of her husband and the other woman who became governor succeeded her husband at his death.

But the fact remains that the time may come when the woman vote may rise up to haunt the politicians of the other sex. It is conceivable that an issue might be created which would bring out the women voters in much larger numbers and cause them to disregard party ties and family traditions. Issues have been known to have that effect upon the men, and in the election booth there isn't so much difference between the sexes.

"COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE"

JUDGE MacNEILLE hit the nail precisely on the head the other day when he declared that the whole subject of "companionate marriage" was absolutely silly, declares the Philadelphia Inquirer. The Philadelphia jurist said that a debate on the legalizing of murder or robbery was about as sensible as one on the question of legalizing the kind of marriage proposed by the half-baked reformers of the present day. The subject of marriage is as old as civilization, and the so-called intellectuals who imagine that the world has been waiting for thousands of years to hear their views on the problem are simply deluding themselves.

The amazing part of it is that any normal person should treat the modern controversy seriously. Not since it was solemnly proclaimed that it is not good for man to live alone has there been anything better for the individual and for society than what we call the Christian marriage. Merely passing a law cannot make an immorality normal. "The trouble with Judge Lindsey and the people like him," says Judge MacNeille, "is that in trying to tinker with the institution of marriage they are lacking in brains and suffering with a mental stomach ache. They are attacking something—they don't exactly know what. They are against everything and not building up anything."

Such plain talk from a person in authority comes like a breath of fresh air to clear the atmosphere of a lot of fog and intellectual and moral cloudiness. The so-called "companionate marriage" is a joke, and a poor and ill-advised one at that.

SCOPE OF THE PRESS

WILL ROGERS, philosopher in cap and bells, nightly confesses to his audiences that all he knows is "what he sees in the papers"—and he is representative of a tremendous army.

The newspaper is the sole source of information and knowledge for that vast multitude which limits its daily reading to one or more papers. And the great majority of those who do not limit their reading to the newspapers turn elsewhere only for entertainment, depending upon their paper to keep them informed on the economic, political, scientific and social state of the nation and world.

In any issue of a representative American newspaper one will find reports from the scientists, a survey of economic and political conditions, a graphic picture of all strata of contemporary society, a summary of current history and a mirror of the wit and humor of the times. To the seeing the modern newspaper is a magic crystal in which the gazer can see the world pass before his eyes.

Into each newspaper edition is condensed hundreds of current events without geographical limitation, the essential portions of the writings and utterances of the day, and the latest addition to the "sum of human knowledge."

If society is better informed today than ever in the past it is because there are more newspaper readers.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 5:50. Sun rises tomorrow 6:37.

Somehow or other, that Hickman atmosphere, or tendency, appears to be getting a little too close home. In recent months, there have been several instances, when the police have been called upon to check up on individuals here, who have been showing tendencies not unlike Hickman, only they have never gone the limit. No one dares to think of what might happen if they did, but one thing is certain, they should not be treated "too courteously."

And getting personal, we know a dad, whose only son is about to indulge in matrimony. Now that's all right with father, but the question with him is how he is ever going to stand up under all the social functions. There's one way to get out of it and that's not to attend, but that wouldn't be very nice.

There's just one thing that we'd like to have explained and we've tried it on ourselves and don't know. Why is an affair where the male portion of the human race is attired in these pointed tail coats or bobbed tailed coats with wide open fronts and the ladies, well, they don't have much on either in the front or the back, called a full dress event. Seems to us that it's most the same as calling a burlesque a musical comedy and getting away with it.

We've been talking "get-together" stuff until we expect the public is about tired listening but we are pleased to note that the motorists of the two largest communities of the county are planning to join in one large representative county organization. A few more such combinations would do the county a heap of good.

Notice where it is reported that a bad debt collector is said to have been passing bad checks. As far as we can see that was only making a very "bad" thing very much worse.

A Dalton, Mass., parrot, who lived to the rather mature age of twenty-six years is said never to have uttered a swear word in all her long career, although the possessor of quite an extensive vocabulary. That's almost too good to be true and who would want a parrot, that couldn't swear once in a while.

Racine, O., tells of the farmer, who mistaking carbolic acid for a soothing liniment, rubbed it over his wife's body, probably fatally burning her. It sounds just like another man who has been rubbing it in on his wife and hopes to get away with it.

Passing of the horse and resulting decrease in the demand for products used in their upkeep, is having a distressing effect on the horseshoe industry, the state department of labor and industry informs us. No wonder that those horse shoe pitching fiends are becoming bridge players.

It pays in more ways than one to be clean. It increases your self-respect and the respect of others for you and besides, if you are careful of your own appearance, you are careful of your home and property. It's a mighty good time to begin thinking of what you plan to do in the old home lot in the next few months.

From London, England, comes the information that invention rights taken out by a British manufacturing consern, that the next thing we will be bothered with will be all-metal clothing. It is claimed that clothing treated with this process metal will never wear out. That might appeal to the fellow who don't care, but who'd care about always being able to wear the same clothing.

Free speech, is dead at the University of Wisconsin, we are informed by the talented Dora Russell, who was scheduled to speak before the student forum of that institution but was not permitted to do so through the activity of Glenn Frank, president of the institution. Mrs. Russell was to have spoken in regard to sex. The honorable president should have known better than to mix things with a woman in matters of this kind.

Leon Trotsky, famous Russian communist, traveled on a special train to his place of exile and what's more, is said to have had seventy trunks. No wonder he was mistaken for an American Millionaire by many of those people, whom he helped to live in simplicity. That's a lot of luggage for a leader of the common people. They must have been filled with propaganda to be used in changing the world.

Note to young ladies contemplating matrimony. The eagle most easily tamed is the bald eagle.

In Brooklyn, a man has been arrested for selling another fellow, who must have had money but not much else, a number of "diamonds" which proved to be nothing but glass. Just another instance of "the fool and his money are easily parted."

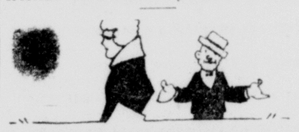
Out in Aurora, Illinois, there lives William Shannon, who has just celebrated his 101st birthday. He was born in Pennsylvania, which may explain his long life. He was just baptized last Sunday and explained why he took a hundred years to join church, saying "Church did not appeal to me in my younger days because the preachers all talked about hell fires and damnation. Nowadays they are different." Fortunately for the world at large, it does not take most of us that long to realize that most of us get a lot of that experience right here on earth.

The twenty two year old Marymount college co-ed who left her studies and nome to become a housemaid may not be so foolish as she appears. Experience is acknowledged to be one of the best teachers in the world and she will sure get it as a housemaid.

Teapot Dome had its lesson and the government is apparently making the most of its experience. Fort Morgan, Alabama, was ordered sold to provide money needed by the army for housing purposes. But the sale has been deferred because of the finding of oil on the fort property. The government will likely get its "share" of the oil in this instance.

Abolition of orphanages and the substitution of private foster homes is urged by Judge Samuel D. Levy of New York. The individual care so necessary in most children's lives is not available there, he declares. The foster home would provide a "mother spirit" lacking in the other places. After all that what is home without a "mother"? We believe the judge is far from being wrong.

In Vienna, Austria, a man's purely platonic relations with another woman will hereafter constitute valid grounds for divorce. There's one thing about such a stand, it should help a married man select his female friends with extreme care.



It's fair enough. The woman without a fur coat suffers outdoors; the woman who has one suffers indoors.

All men created equal? Well, all racers start at scratch; but the race wouldn't be fun if the runners kept even.

Heard the other day Harry Alexander was thinking of the coming tomato season and was planning to get a running start on us, just because we're in the south. There's one thing he should keep in mind in trying to best us in tomato growing and that is that tomatoes are earlier where we are than at home and that if he takes advantage of our absence in our little contest, we might bring home a few plants.

Also a woman is as bold as she looks.

If he says he won't argue, he means only that he won't listen after saying his say.

Lord Askwith in an address before the Royal Colonial Institute in London insinuated that if the tin supplies of this country should fail in any way, that 25 per cent of us American husbands would go hungry because tinned goods have robbed American women of their culinary. He evidently forgot how these same American women showed up in World war times when something had to be done and done in a hurry. If tin cans are not obtainable, they'll find some other way of preserving food for hubby.

Trade-in value. The worth of an old car, based on the amount you are stung for the new one.

There will always be "undeveloped peoples". Some remote sections have no resources worth stealing.

Federal dry agents in Baltimore are alleged to have attempted to kiss and hug the wife of a violator, whom they had just blackjacked, congress has been told recently. Evidently these agents were not familiar with the Volstead act. It says nothing about such things as that and creates no special liberties for those who enforce it.

Lindy can't popularize flying. He seems most heroic to those who think flying most dangerous.

Messrs. Vare and Smith know how a stranger in New York feels when somebody sells him Brooklyn bridge.

The two stones most commonly associated with matrimony are the diamond and the grindstone.

A wonderful memory for history dates and things isn't worth anything unless you are going to be a waiter.

Americanism: A yearning to get culture or get thin or get rich without paying the price.

It costs about $500 to get smuggled into America, whether you're a Chinaman or an infant.

The age of discretion is that at which a man doesn't mind admitting women are a little smarter than men.

There's really no such thing as a "bloated bond holder." It's bottled-in-bond that bloats.

It must gall Rickard to see a Ford-Chevrolet fight in progress and not paying him anything.

Dempsey's plight might be worse. Keen eyesight isn't essential in the business of coupon clipping.

Tact is merely the art of encouraging the other fellow's belief that he is a little more important than you are.

We sat and talked those secret things
Which lie down deep within the brain;
The hidden hopes which now seem vain.

The strange, reflective journeyings
Man takes upon his spirit wings
To goals he never may attain,
The dreams transcending sordid gain
To which in spite of all he clings.

And talking thus the hours flew by,
And time and distance were forgot.
He showed his inner self and I
The man I would be, but am not.
"All out!" the porter called and then
We came to earth and work again.

Congressman Casey, Democrat from Pennsylvania, says 5,000,000 men are idle in the United States, and government should invest the Treasury surplus in the Colorado dam, regulating Mississippi floods, and supplying other work for the idle.

Government figures do not confirm Mr. Casey's 5,000,000 estimate.

But government money should build the Boulder dam and make the Mississippi safe, not merely provide work for the idle, of whom few can work in concrete and stone, but to do work that the nation needs.

As for unemployment, that should be the government's principal business. The country owes no man a living, but does owe every man a chance to work.

In financial emergency government helps through the Federal Reserve. That institution makes financial panics impossible.

Government should find a way to make labor panics impossible. Such panics are more important than financial panics, for they involve worry for mothers and want for children.

Governor Al Smith of New York sets a good example, telling his representatives to report all possibilities of using public monies in necessary public works, to meet lack of employment.

Republicans should remember that they will be hearing from Mr. Smith next November.

Intelligent Mrs. B., who observes as she goes, reports this sign, on the way to the Huntington Hotel in Pasadena, "Two things to hang, Hickman and our wall paper."

Such advertising, except the religious one, is bad advertising, taking your mind from the thing advertised. Reference to Hickman the murderer takes the mind off wall paper.

Secretary Hoover's statement on prohibition must not be interpreted as expressing satisfaction with prohibition as it is. Mr. Hoover says the "great social and economic experiment, noble in motive—must be worked out constructively."

Room for improvement is suggested in that word constructively.

At present, unfortunately, with bootleggers, hijackers, drug fiends, wel lorganized crime and wholesale bribery of officials, prohibition works out organized destructively.

King Amanullah of Afghanistan owns a flying machine carrying nine passengers, pilot and radio operator.

One machine for a "dummy" king of Afghanistan means nothing. But ten thousand faster machines, owned by Asiatics that once traveled westward on little ponies might mean a great deal to western Europe and this well satisfied continent.

Helen Wills went to one prize-fight and says she will never go to another. Many that appreciate her value as an example to young people would have been glad had she not gone to the first prize-fight.

Automobile speed contests with blazing cars plunging or rolling into the ocean, do not help the motor industry or sell cars. Racing cars are specially built and represent no article for sale. They attain speeds worthless in real motoring. And what is more important to manufacturers, they frighten fathers and mothers, who say, "I would not want my children to have a car of that kind."

FRANKLIN

The 17th of January was the anniversary of the birthday of Benjamin Franklin.

This is a character in America's story that should be familiar to every boy and girl.

No man was more patriotic, no man braver, no man more capable in so many ways than Benjamin Franklin.

Think of the things he did!

It was he who secured the aid of France for America during the Revolutionary War.

He helped write the Declaration of Independence.

He was instrumental in securing the repeal of the Stamp Act.

He organized the first Anti-Slavery Society.

He founded the University of Pennsylvania.

He was the father of the United States Weather Bureau.

He was responsible for charting the Gulf Stream.

He established the first successful circulating library.

He discovered that lightning is electricity and invented the lightning rod.

He invented Franklin stoves, near and far vision spectacles, the mangle iron, smoke consuming stoves and a copying press for taking copies of manuscripts.

He was editor of the first and most successful newspaper of his time.

His cartoon "Join or Die" was the first newspaper cartoon ever used.

He iniated advertising as a fundamental force in business.

He helped create the first fire insurance company in America.

He first pointed out the possibility of building ships with water-tight compartments.

He was a shark at making magic squares.

Although he was entitled to be known as America's greatest citizen, he preferred to be known as Benjamin Franklin, printer.

Here are one or two of his sayings:

"Where there's marriage without love there will be love without marriage."

"Keep your eyes wide open before marriage — half-shut afterwards."

"Wink at small faults, remember thou hast great ones."

The above was taken from a pamphlet issued by the "Benjamin Franklins", a society formed to do honor to the name of Franklin.

SHIPS AND AIRSHIPS

We are soon to have trans-Atlantic mail service. Official announcement of mail contracts about to be let by the United States government to a British concern has been made. The British company will carry the mail aboard a great airship, and the charges for carrying will be high enough to make it possible for the enterprise to pay expenses. An airship costs a lot of money, and the overhead on airship mail service will be high.

As an American, I receive this news with mixed feelings. I am proud that out British friends have advanced so far with aerial pioneering that they are able to offer this service, and I think our government does well to offer friendly co-operation. But I feel a distinct sting of disappointment because the Americans did not get the trans-Atlantic mail going first.

Three or four years ago I heard a good deal about dirigibles that were to come out of Akron, O., bigger and better than any others in the world. German workmen and engineers, who know more about airships than any other people were headed toward Akron to carry on the work, under American encouragement and American proprietorship. I hope those airships will yet come out of Akron in great flocks, and I hope that the American government will be even more liberal in co-operating with such enterprise than it is in assisting British capital to float the first trans-Atlantic flying mail.

There is some consolation for Americans in a project that is receiving serious attention of American capitalists, and should get the hearty support of American government. It is proposed to build ten fast steamers, closely resembling the airplane carrier Saratoga, recently completed for the American navy. These steamers would ply between an eastern American port, probably on the eastern end of Long Island, New York, and a port in England or Ireland.

The steamers, sailing daily from each side, would cross it in four days. But they would maintain a mail service that would take letters from America to the British Isles in from two to three days. Late mail would leave New York regularly by plane, and catch a boat a day or a day and a half out, and the same mail would leave the boat by plane for Europe when slightly past mid-ocean. It is doubtful whether airships could compete successfully with this service. And the ships would carry passengers and package freight, as well as mail. This project should be rushed to realization before our national pride suffers another set-back.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

DOG THE FAITHFUL

Dogs, at least most dogs, like to ride in the automobile with their masters or mistresses. I ran across a curious instance of this recently. A chap whose work in life is the driving of a Caterpillar Tractor doing all kinds of grading jobs was driving home from the mountains after a Sunday's outing—not on the Tractor, but in his jaunty Ford Roadster. He stopped at a wayside gas station for the inevitable. There was a long-haired Scotch Terrier wandering homelessly about the Station and when the chap drove off the dog, sensing a friendly look in his eye, jumped upon the runningboard of the Ford. He stuck right there, rode home with the driver and in all things treated the driver thereafter as Master.

Dog and man are now inseparable; dog goes to work with the man every day; stays on the job all day and returns in the evening to his bone and chow. Up and down the road, the field or the house lot, the dog follows the Tractor, sometimes jumping up beside the Master, but never letting the man get far away. He has found a Home and he is not going to lose it if absolute devotion to the Man can keep it. The man, by the way, is likewise devoted to the Dog.

A more remarkable case of adoption by a dog has been found. Bruno a fleet yellow staghound, has adopted a railroad locomotive at Bozeman, Montana. Bruno thinks well of the crew, but it is the locomotive that has attracted him. The dog may always be found close to switch engine No. 911. He never rides, but runs beside the locomotive, averaging sixty miles a day. He eats with the engine crew, and when it works overtime he puts in extra hours too. At night he sleeps in the roundhouse beside his mogul idol.

Bruno turned up at the roundhouse three years ago and hasn't missed a day since. Scampering up and down the yards daily, he has worn a path along the right-of-way.

Man's greatest friend is yet the Dog.

Reason Why

By IDAH McCLONE GIBSON

I do not often go to afternoon parties, but the other day in a moment of weakness I accepted an invitation to a luncheon and bridge.

When I arrived I found twenty other women, including my hostess, in the private dining room at the supposedly best hotel in town.

My hostess is a very lovely woman, as were the most of the others. They were all in their prettiest frocks and some even had on new hats to match the spring flowers that decorated the table profusely.

The luncheon was well cooked and beautifully served. Chicken and mushrooms under glass, endive salad, strawberry parfait and other delectable and expensive viands.

For two hours we sat and stuffed ourselves with too much food and then when we became stupid and sleepy we repaired to another room to play bridge.

Every one of those women was charming and intelligent, but the only thing that I heard talked about while we were at luncheon was "The President's Daughter" and the sensational fact that Mrs. Snyder went to the execution chair in the firm belief that after the volts of electricity should be sent through her, she was to be given over to her friends and resuscitated. Can one blame some money-mad syndicate for publishing sensational tabloid newspapers? It looks as though that is all the people want to read and talk about.

After the game began no one said a word except someone criticized her partner for not making a finesse or on some other of the important rules of the game.

For three hours straight, twenty women sat there and played cards as though their lives depended upon it and then after two of them had received their beautiful prizes they bade their hostess goodbye and said the conventional polite things to their hostess and hurried home.

"A pleasant time was had by all." But I did not carry one thing home with me that I might remember except perhaps the beauty of my hostess and the pretty frocks of the guests.

I sometimes wonder who would come to one's party if the hostess would ask each guest to tell what had interested her most the last week. Every one of those women I know had some other thing, some philanthropy or artistic project, her house or her children that made up part of her life. Individually each one was charming but at an afternoon party.....?

Striking Miners Favor Ousting Of Lewis, Vote Shows

Believe John L. Lewis Cause For Conditions In Coal Fields Today

(International News Service)

BELLAIRE, O., Feb. 27.—Approximately 250 striking union miners were on record here today demanding the resignation of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Lee Hall, president of the Ohio district.

The vote was taken after John Brophy of Pittsburgh, Lewis' opponent for the union headship at Indianapolis last year, had addressed the group under the watchful eye of national guardsmen, deputy sheriffs, deputy U. S. marshalls and Bellaire police to prevent "red" activities.

Brophy, former president of district 2, central Pennsylvania coal fields, was here ostensibly in the interests of the Pennsylvania and Ohio miners' relief organization, which has been charged with being a blind for radical activities within the strikers' ranks. The organization is not recognized by union leaders.

"The ills affecting the miner's union are directly due to the blunder of John L. Lewis," declared Brophy, charging more than 100,000 miners were forced out of the union when Lewis failed to get operators in West Virginia and other non-union districts to sign the wage scale.

SENATORS VISIT COAL STRIKE AREA

1400 New Maytag Owners every day

THE Maytag's only rival is another Maytag. The New Maytag has broken Maytag's world record for washer production.

Every day 1400 new Maytag owners in every section of the country are introduced to Washday Happiness—happiness because of washings done in less time, about one hour; happiness because of clothes washed beautifully clean without hand-rubbing.

And it is happiness that has come to stay because the Maytag is built for a lifetime of service. It is the only washer with a non-breakable, cast-aluminum tub—the tub that keeps water hot for an entire washing, then empties and cleans itself.

Because of the silent, smooth-running, steel-cut gears, and the fine engineering in every part, there is a remarkable absence of vibration, and vibration is a washer's greatest enemy.

Would you know washday happiness, try a Maytag. See the new soft Roller Water Remover with safety feed board and automatic tension adjustment—test and compare its many outstanding features.

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor.

Part of Lindsey's idea is more than a suggestion that what is now almost universal illegally, be made legal.

ARE YOU ONE?

Have you ever noticed that men who are the most successful in their own business, and who have to work hard on their own projects are usually the ones who have the most civic spirit and who do the most for their towns? Men on the brink of failure are generally not giving much time to civic enterprises. They say they haven't time. What they mean is that they do not manage their time properly. Perhaps one reason they are on the edge of failure is to be found in the fact that they take so little interest in community affairs.

CONFIDENCE.

One of the richest corporations in the country is the du Pont company, the great powder manufacturers of Delaware. It is interesting to know that the du Pont company greatly increases its income by investments in other concerns. That company now holds 23 per cent of the entire issue of General Motors stock. And it has put millions of dollars into other investments. This is all a hopeful sign to the small investor. These big concerns know the market. Their officers know business conditions. They know industrial confidence in this country. They are practical men. Don't worry about American industry.

Horses Are Losing Out In U. S. Cavalry Units

BY LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The last stronghold of the horse in America—the army unit—has fallen before the irresistible advance of machinery and the gasoline motor.

The War Department has announced a program to motorize cavalry units as rapidly as personnel can be trained.

Following an intensive general staff study of the influence of mechanical units upon the fundamental principles of tactics and strategy, the first armored car united has been placed in the field at Ft. Myer, Virginia. After a period of experimental activity at various camps under experts in the new science of "military mechanization," the troop will become a part of the First Cavalry Division at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Texas. Other cavalry companies will be converted as rapidly as possible.

Although itself a negligible force from the standpoint of military value, the experimental unit is regarded by army experts as a departure of epochal significance, comparable in its effective upon land warfare with the introduction of steel armor in naval construction. It signalizes a new era in tactical science, in which long range artillery combat and indecisive trench warfare will once more give way to open fighting between highly mobile units.

MR. WILLIAM JEFFRIES

New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington Street, New Castle, where he is daily demonstrating the popular medicine, Ten Herbs. "By not getting rid of waste matter, my whole system became saturated with poison," continued Mr. Jeffries, who works in a coal mine. "I lost my appetite, and what little I ate would sour on my stomach. I would bloat with gas, which would work up around my heart and cause palpitation. At night, I would wake up two or three times and find water running out of my mouth. My liver was inactive. I had bilious headaches and dizzy spells. Sometimes black spots came before my eyes and blurred my vision. I did not sleep well, because of nervousness. The least thing would excite me. My kidneys were not in good condition, and I had to arise several times every night. At times, I had rheumatism so badly I could not walk or raise my arms.

"After taking Ten Herbs, I enjoy my meals without any sign of indigestion. My bowels have been regulated, and my liver and kidneys are working fine. Biliousness, dizzy spells and black spots before my eyes are gone. My nerves are stronger, and I sleep well, rheumatism has been greatly relieved, and I have full use of my arms and limbs. Ten Herbs seems to have given my entire system a thorough cleansing, and I feel better in every way. I am pleased to endorse Ten Herbs to the public."

Try Ten Herbs, if your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are not working the way Nature intended them. It is purely herbal and pleasant to take.

The Ten Herbs Man is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington Street, New Castle, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. He will be glad to tell you how to take it to get the best results. Free sample given.

Common Pleas Court Closes At Mercer

Ten Cases Tried And Remainder Continued Or Settled Out Of Court

MERCER, Pa., Feb. 27.—The February common pleas court came to a close Saturday after a week of hearing when 24 cases were listed for hearings; nine were settled and three continued.

Of the 24 set for trial 10 of the number were tried, the remainder either continued or settled out of court, the major portion of them being continued. The March term, last of this court, will be quite large, it is reported.

In the action in which Joseph and Catherine Smorul sued Joseph Franek the jury returned a verdict in favor of the Smoruls for $900 with interest from December 11, 1925.

They are of Monongahela; Franek of Farrell. It is alleged that a lot bought by the plaintiffs in Farrell was not delivered to them by deed of Franek.

Beaver Man Dies In Plane Crash

Loses Life While Using Plane In Effort To Overtake Train

(International News Service)

BEAVER, Pa., Feb. 27.—Word was received here today of the death of Samuel N. Craig, 42, in an airplane accident in Aurora, Neb., yesterday. He was president of the Treadwell Construction Co., and the Midland Barge Co., both of Midland, Pa.

A telegram to Craig's family stated that he was burned to death and his pilot seriously injured. He was making a business trip to Los Angeles and engaged the airplane when he missed train connections. The plane caught fire near Aurora.

Craig was killed while racing to catch a coast-bound train on which he had reservations. He left here Friday night for Los Angeles and, missing connections in Chicago, chartered an air mail plane to overtake the train. The plane, piloted by Frank Yeager of Cheyenne, crashed into a grove of trees and caught fire. Yeager was seriously burned.

Craig owned an airplane in Florida about five years ago, and "Jimmy" Morris, father of Capt. Jack Morris of Pittsburgh, was killed while making a flight in it over Georgia.

Craig leaves his widow, Mrs. Ruth Walker Craig; two sons, John and Samuel, and one daughter Ruth, all at home, and his father.

Daugherty's Dove Is Descendant Of Noah's Ark Bird

Shows Intelligence Akin To Dove That Brought Back Leaf During The Flood

J. M. Daugherty of Croton avenue has a pet dove that is said to be a direct descendant of the dove that was unloosed from Noah' ark. How its pedigree was traced is a secret which Mr. Daugherty refuses to divulge. But if intelligence is any criterion by which to judge, Mr. Daugherty's dove can qualify one hundred per cent.

"All that Noah's dove did was to go out and bring back a leaf", says Mr. Daugherty. "Its intelligence consisted in knowing what it was sent for. I'll admit that it was a wise bird, but so is my dove."

To prove it to a reporter Mr Daugherty asked the dove if it wanted a bath. It cooed. He then opened the cage door and the dove flew to the water spigot. The water was turned on and it took a bath in the sink.

"Now dry yourself," commanded Mr. Daugherty. The bird flew to the coal stove and perched itself in front of the glowing grate embers. In a few minutes he asked it if it wanted to go to bed. It cooed again. Going to the opposite end of the kitchen Mr. Daugherty prepared a bed in a basket. The dove flew over and cooed while it was being tucked under some rags. "It will sleep there for hours," said Mr. Daugherty.

Among other things that the dove knows is the time when Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty arise in the morning. It will start cooing at exactly the same hour every morning, and don't let up until someone appears. It is very friendly, likes to be nursed like a kitten, and if allowed to leave the house will return.

The bird is called "Arko" in memory of Noah's dove.

An Open Letter to the Better Dressed Women of this Community

This open letter is addressed primarily to our legion of patrons, our first obligation is to them, because they have made possible the rapid growth and success of the Jiles Shoppe; to continue to enjoy their patronage and widen our circle of friends, we must prove worthy of their allegiance.

To that end, we have formed plans which we believe will meet the approval of both our own patrons (whose confidence we have merritoriously earned) as well as those women who have heard of our shoppe but have been timid about coming in, due primarily to the "high priced appearance" that our apparel seems to convey, and to the well appointed interior which adds to the pleasure of shopping.

This Season we are featuring two price groups in dresses, which experience taught us are most popular here, they are: $25.00 and $35.00. Each frock and costume will represent the utmost in quality, tailoring, and finish, replicas of the original creations of the Parisian courtiers as well as our own designers of the U. S. A., selected with the same care for those distinctives touches, that has endeared the Jiles Shoppe wherever smartly dressed women foregather.

It is not within our gifts to "word-paint" a true picture of the rare beauty of color and artistry of styling that these dresses possess, nor can we adequately convey the quality that is in them at the above prices, all we can say is—"Come and see them for yourself," after all, it is your judgment that must first be convinced.

On your next shopping tour for that "hard-to-find" Spring costume, make it a point to visit The Jiles Shoppe, we will be glad to show you what will add to your personality without making you feel obligated for doing so.

Sincerely yours,

The Jiles Shoppe

Double Victory For Ellwood City Teams

Girls Win Lopsided Victory Of 50 To 6, With Boys Scoring By 26 To 19

Zelienople Teams Put Up Good Fight, But Are Outplayed Saturday Night

(By Tony Pasta.)

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 27.—Ellwood City high's basketeers traveled to Zelienople Saturday night and copped a double victory, with the girls winning a lopsided score at 50 to 6 and the boys team winning 26-19.

This victory is of little prestige to the Ellwood team as the Butler county team was minus the services of four regulars who were thrown out of the league when they played independent basketball. Coach Lee took advantage of this opportunity and rushed a flock of subs after the contest had been sewed up.

Slocum was the leading scorer as he dropped in four buckets. Justine and Friedoff each caged two while King scored only three out of eight fouls. Justine fared little better in this department, dropping in two out of three. Evans and Gies starred for the losers and showed superb floor work. Both tossed in two pointers while the latter's close guarding helped to keep the Blue and White's score down.

In the preliminary a marathon race took place as Irene Ross and her lassies ran up a score of 50 points and held the Zelienople maidens to six tallies. This was an improvement for Butler county maidens as they were defeated by a score of 30 points more when they played on the local floor.

Thompson and Ross led the attack for Sara McGoun's quartet with the latter collecting 18 buckets. Stier and Dunbar both played well.

Several inter-sectional games are being scheduled according to reports and some are to take place this week. Interest is now being focused on the Butler-New Castle contest which decides the leading team in this section. Butler gave the Red and Black a setback in a recent encounter which entiled them to another clash with Bridenbaugh's quintet.

Chorus Of 65 Voices Leads Enjoyable Sons Service Prior To Sermon By Rev. King

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 27. — The first of the week of Union Services in the United Presbyterian church of this city, opened Sunday evening with the auditorium so crowded that many were standing in the rear.

Prior to the sermon, a song service led by a chorus of 65 voices was enjoyed by the congregation. Mrs. Henry Schenck, soloist of the Trinity Lutheran church contributed a lovely soprano solo. Mr. Homer Welch of Grove City conducted the music.

Rev. W. E. Minteer of the United Presbyterian church read the scripture; Rev. C. W. Macgeorge of the Baptist church, the text, and the sermon of the evening was delivered by Rev. John King of the Bell Memorial church. He chose as his theme "The Birds of the Night," an interesting address telling of the long flights of the night feathered travelers, likening their instinctive guide for the right direction, to the experiences of the human heart, which is guided by the divine hand of God.

This evening at 6:45 the workers of the Evangelistic campaign will conduct a meeting at the church, to be followed by the second Union service.

POPULAR YOUNG LADY INDORSES NEW KONJOLA

Stomach Misery, Headaches, And Dizzy Spells, All Quickly Ended

Indigestion—gas and bloating—feeling like a rock in the stomach—wild heart palpitation—feeling like fire from the throat to the pit of the stomach—awful headaches—loss of weight, tissue and strength—sour stomach—cramps—these are some of the symptoms of a disordered stomach.

People who take this new Konjola say there is nothing like this new celebrated medicine to relieve a disordered stomach and put a stop to such distress and misery. For instance, just a few days ago, Mrs. A. Ristow, a popular young lady of Hamilton, Ohio, made the following statement about Konjola while talking with the Konjola Man who is now at Love & Megown drug store, 204 E. Washington street, where he is daily meeting crowds of men and women from all over this section and explaining Konjola.

"I suffered with stomach troubles of the worst kind for almost 8 years," said Mrs. Ristow. "I was subject to dizzy spells, had dreadful headaches, and attacks of cramps. Every meal I ate brought on intense misery from gas and bloating.

"I treated with specialists and had taken about 20 different kind of medicines, but my trouble seemed to go from bad to worse. I found out about this Konjola, and now since I have taken it I am free of indigestion entirely. At the same time, this Konjola increased my weight about 18 pounds. I never have dizzy spells, headaches or cramps. My food agrees with me and is giving me nourishment. It seems like my entire appearance is changed, and I have more energy than I had in years. I am grateful to Konjola and recommend it to others."

The Konjola Man is at Love & Megown drug store, 204 E. Washington street, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINTS

Christmas holidays soon are over, the children are safely back in school and mother can take time to go to her club lecture. The ingredients for a meat pie may all be prepared in the morning, as the breakfast dishes are being washed, the beds made and the daily "straightening up" done. If you have meat left over from the roast, so much the better, but in case you haven't, the fresh meat cooked for the purpose will answer. The pie crust may be made in the morning and rolled out and put on the pie while the oven is heating at dinner time, or it may be mixed in a few minutes at that time. The recipe I am giving for pie filling may be used for beef stew and dumplings may be added in place of the crust.

Meat Pie Pineapple Salad
Cake Tea

Today's Recipe.

Two and one-half pounds of beef, one-half cup diced turnips, one-half cup diced carrots, two cups diced potatoes, one good sized onion, diced, salt, pepper. Wipe meat, cut into small pieces, sprinkle with salt, dredge with flour and brown in fat. Cover with boiling water and boil five minutes, then lower the temperature and cook until meat is tender, then add vegetables and cook until done. Season well, cover with crust and bake until crust is done.

Pineapple Salad—Put slice of canned pineapple on bed of finely shredded or chopped cabbage, arrange strips of pimento on pineapple and serve with mayonnaise.

Pie Crust—One cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon shortening, one-fourth teaspoon salt, four tablespoons water, two tablespoons condensed milk. Sift dry ingredients, work in shortening and add water and milk mixed together.

Suggestions.
Eat More Fruit.

Here are a few reasons why we all should eat more fruit.

Oranges, lemons and other citrus fruits contain large quantities of vitamin C.

Fruit contains natural sugars; they should replace candy as far as possible.

Fruit helps to counteract acid condition in the blood.

Fruit contains minerals which make rich blood.

Fruit, because of its beauty and flavor, increases appetite.

Fruit, especially figs, dates, prunes, etc., and apples are laxatives; apples, too, are good for the teeth.

The juices of fruit, when taken in quantity are useful in the treatment of colds.

Berries, because of their seeds, are not easily digested and should be given sparingly to small children.

The tomato, technically speaking, is a fruit and contains vitamins A, B and C in generous amounts, especially vitamin C. Strained tomato juice, raw or canned, may be used in place of orange juice for this factor.

We have been accused of being extravagant in our advice to the housewives. In our view of which we hesitate to mention rhubarb at this early date. But one gets so tired of canned fruit, dried fruit, applesauce and baked apples, that it is a great temptation to buy some of the lovely pink stalks that have been appearing in the markets. And it really is not so expensive, for there is little waste beyond the tops and ends, as we don't have to peel this tender rhubarb. We'll have a pie or dish of sauce just for a treat.

Cream of Tomato Soup
Toasted Bread Strips
Cold Sliced Roast Meat
Creamed Potatoes
Raw Carrot and Apple Salad
Rhubarb Pie Coffee

Today's Recipes

Carrot and Apple Salad—Two-thirds diced apple to one-third of finely cut or grated carrot, with a wee bit of onion. Serve on lettuce or finely chopped cabbage with mayonnaise.

Rhubarb Pie—Into a good pie crust pile new rhubarb cut into inch lengths. Fill crust full, pour over it half a cup or more of sugar and dot with bits of butter. Cover with top crust and put into hot oven. Lower heat after the first 10 or 15 minutes.

SUGGESTION
Cinnamon in Shaker

Cinnamon toast may be prepared in one-half the usual time if first you mix your cinnamon and granulated sugar and then put the mixture in a salt shaker. When bread is toasted and buttered, shake the sugar and cinnamon over the toast from the salt shaker. You'll find this saves time; proportion the sugar and cinnamon more evenly, and if your shaker is not too small your mixture will be ready for the next time.

The results come from acids derived from lemon and grapes. And they are at your command every hour of the day.

Learn what "Epsonade" means to you. How soon it can change conditions. It may save you countless hours of depression. All druggists supply "Epsonade" at small cost.

Slain Governess, Torch Victim, Pictured By Those Knowing Her As One More Sacrifice To Love

Margaret Brown and the exclusive Park Ave., New York, apartment house at which she worked (11th floor).

By CLARK KINNAIRD
New York Correspondent of Central Press and New Castle News.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—In servant halls in the exclusive apartment house at 1105 Park avenue, investigators are piecing together fragmentary conversations, impressions, glimpses and bits of gossip, and reconstructing their knowledge of Margaret Brown, the quiet, reserved woman of 40, or thereabouts, who died a martyr to love, wrapped in flames, on a lonely road near Bernardsville, N. J., after giving up her position as governess.

At No. 1105, in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. James Park Gillespie, Margaret Brown was a governess for ten months. Her charge was the Gillespies' daughter, five years old, the only child.

Margaret Brown was in daily contact with her employers and four other servants, but none of them know much about her. She did not go beyond the conventional civilities with the maids. They recognized her as one apart, but they were curious about her, and sometimes they discussed her, they admit now.

Originally From Buffalo.

When they hired Miss Brown, the parents of her little charge did not pursue their investigation of her antecedents beyond inquiring about the references provided by her last employers, the family of Irving Bloomingdale. They knew that she was from Buffalo originally, and that she had been a governess 15 years.

One of the members of the household, a Miss Miller, knows that Miss Brown met a man referred to as "doctor" at various times in Central Park. Little Jean remembers Miss Brown meeting this man when she was taken to the park for airings. She says the "doctor" had an automobile. In this car, it is supposed, the governess rode forth to seek romance—and find death.

Mrs. Gillespie is naturally resentful over being thrust into the front page glare by the fatal intrigue of one of her employes, but she is courteous to professional inquirers, and speaks kindly of the governess.

Mrs. Gillespie's Statement.

"I found her trustworthy. She was satisfactory in every way, and she was a person of the highest integrity," Mrs. Gillespie says.

"I knew nothing of her personal affairs. Her home was in Buffalo, I believe, and she had relatives in New Jersey."

When she told Mrs. Gillespie she was giving up the position, the governess explained she had to go to California to visit a sick relative. The resignation was accepted with regret because little Jean liked the governess. She departed on Monday morning. A little before midnight of that day it was when motorists found her burning body beside a road in New Jersey.

The Gillespies have no theories or explanations of the woman's death, but backstairs they feel that Margaret Brown was the victim of the man in whose arms she hopefully sought escape from the hum-drum existence of a caretaker of other persons' children. They guess there had been little romance in her life. They remember that she seemed to have few friends; that she spent much of her time reading. They don't remember what she read, but they suppose it was stories of love. Backstairs they have hearts, too.

PERTUSSIN
Clears the throat!

PERTUSSIN not only relieves the cough, but helps to clear out the infectious mucus—and in so harmless a way that even little children and those weakened by illness can take it safely.

Three Fires Occur Here Over Sunday

Losses Are Small And Children Playing With Matches Cause One

Firemen of the city were called on to answer three alarms of fire on Sunday.

First of these alarms was received at 11:25 a. m. and called the firemen to the third story apartment of Edward Heaney, 231 West Grant street. Here it was found that the fire had originated from a gas stove used for cooking purposes and had spread rapidly, when the firemen arrived. The loss was about $200.

During the afternoon at 2:20 o'clock the firemen were called to the west end of Edison avenue, to battle and put out a grass fire.

Third of the Sunday alarms was from box 33 at 2:30 p. m., calling the firemen to the Joseph Valentino home, 1329 Croton avenue. It was found that some children had been using a part of the barn of Valentino property as a club house. They had a fire, when an old mattress was set on fire and the blaze resulted. There was little or no actual property loss.

REVOLVER STOLEN

H. K. Walker of 230 Vine street, reported to the police Sunday that some person had stolen a revolver from his home. Officers were detailed on the scene, but were unable to locate the thief.

Mayor Gillespie Releases Altman

Mayor William H. Gillespie, on Saturday afternoon, changed the plan that had been formulated concerning Carl Altman, arrested Friday night, after several weeks investigation by the police and permitted Altman to go, after he had provided a bond in the sum of $300 for his good behavior.

Under the provisions of the arrangements made at the securing of his release, Altman will be permitted to go about his affairs as usual, as long as he does not return to that type of actions for which he was arrested. His bond is in the nature of a forfeit posted and held during good behavior. It had been originally planned that he be sent to the county court.

REFUSES TO STOP; PAYS HEAVY FINE

William R. Hill, ordered into police station over the week end by Officer Frank Reynolds for failure to stop and observe the main thoroughfare regulation, paid a fine of $5.

It is claimed by the police authorities, that Hill was not making the stop, when Officer Reynolds saw this and directed Hill to stop. Even then, it is said, that Hill failed to pay any attention. For this reason his fine was somewhat larger than is usually paid in such cases.

POLICE GET MANY AT DISORDERLY HOUSE

Place of Thad Aldridge, 204½ Mahoning avenue, was visited Sunday afternoon by Officers Letera and Thomas, following a complaint that those in that place were noisy and raising a disturbance. Aldridge was arrested and charged with being the keeper of a disorderly house, while seven male visitors were charged with being visitors. Sentence was suspended.

A movement is on foot to reduce crime among our alien population. Possibly keeping them from associating with the native population would help.

Simply apply a Johnson's Red Cross Kidney Plaster right over the seat of pain. You will be astounded and delighted with the quick comfort it brings almost instantly.

It warms and soothes the affected parts, stops the pains and aches, subdues inflammation and drives out soreness in the swollen, painful flesh and joints. It gently massages the flesh with every movement of the body, and its medication is continually absorbed through the skin into the tissues.

Don't endure the agonies of Rheumatism another day. You can get prompt, genuine relief at the nearest drug store if you ask for the Red Cross Kidney Plaster with the red flannel back.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Two Persons Hurt In Falls On Ice

Pavements Slippery And Result In Injury To Man And Woman

An icy condition of the sidewalks of this city, caused by the weather conditions, according to the reports made to the police, caused the serious injury of two persons, who slipped and fell on them. Each of the accidents was investigated by the police.

W. D. Brown, 1606 Delaware avenue, was walking west on Neshannock avenue at Ellis Way, Saturday, when he slipped and fell on the icy formation on the Ellis Way driveway and injured his right foot and leg at the ankle. An X-Ray showed that one of the bones of the ankle had been broken.

Mrs. Thomas C. Boston, 414 Park avenue, fell on the icy crossing at Sycamore Way and North Mill street and sustained injuries of the left ankle. An X-Ray picture showed that bones in the left ankle had been broken. William R. Book of the Atkinson Paint and Glass Company, who reported this action to the police also stated that many persons had slipped and fallen at the same point during the day. Officers Thompson and Criswell answered the call and did everything possible to do away with this condition.

SHARON HOTEL FIRE SMOULDERS SUNDAY

(International News Service)

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 27.—Fire broke out anew in the ruins of the Shenango House block, destroyed several hours before, and firemen were forced to work till Sunday afternoon to extinguish the smouldering debris. A little more than half the loss, estimated at $350,000, was covered by insurance.

WHAT'S THAT YOU SAY?

Here is a singular incident showing how easy it is to mistranslate an overheard remark.

Said Mrs. A., one of the overhearers: "They must have been to the zoo, because I heard her mention a trained deer'."

Said Mrs. B.: "No, no. They were talking about going away and she said to him, 'Find out about the train, dear'."

Said Mrs. C.: "I think you are both wrong. It seemed to me they were discussing music, for she said, 'A trained ear' very distinctly."

A few minutes later the lady herself appeared, and they told her of their disagreement.

"Well," she laughed, "that's certainly funny. You are poor guessers, all of you. The fact is, I'd been out to the country overnight and I was asking my husband if it rained here last evening."

Locate Gun Used In Thoms Murder

Information From Hickman Leads Officers To Spot Gun Is Buried

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—Grim reminder of a career of youthful crime climaxed by the kidnaping and murder of 12-year-old Marion Parker, the revolver formerly wielded by William Edward Hickman was in the possession of police here today.

And, curiously enough, the weapon came into officials' hands through information furnished by the youthful kidnaper-killer himself. A crude map, drawn by the youth, who is under sentence of death for the brutal murder, guided police to an irrigation line sandtrap, where the revolver was dug up.

The gun, according to Hickman, was used in the drug store gun battle on Christmas eve, 1926, which ended in the death of C. Ivy Thoms. Hickman and his former accomplice, Welby Hunt, are now on trial on charges of murdering Thoms.

Attorneys for the defence in the joint trial were prepared to call young Hunt to the stand today to give his version of the fatal gun duel. Hunt's counsel is striving to prove that the youth was under the influence of Hickman's domination.

Toledo Refinery Blast Is Fatal To Oil Workman

Two Are Severely Injured And Burned, Thirteen Oil Tanks Ahe Destroyed

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, Ohio, Feb. 27.—One man is dead, and two fellow workers are in a critical condition in East Toledo hospital today, as the result of an explosion which wrecked 13 oil tanks late yesterday. Loss will reach $200,000 as a result of the fire which followed the blast, it is estimated.

The charred body of Frank Cruse was taken from the refinery building after the blaze was brought under control. Vern Sinclair and Earl Miller who were working with cruse at the time of the explosion were burned by flaming oil. Other employes escaped by plunging into a pond adjoining the refinery.

It is estimated that 13 million gallons of oil were endangered or destroyed in the explosion and fire. While origin of the fire is undetermined, it is believed that spontaneous combustion was responsible.

The refinery employs about 250 persons and has a daily output capacity of 6,500 barrels.

Assessor Sands Resigns His Job

Will Cease Service For City Unless Given Salary Increase, Councilmen Are Told

Unles city council increases his salary Andrew Sands will leave municipal service, according to councilmen today who received his resignation which was filed during council session.

Although his resignation has been filed, probability is that Sands will be asked to reconsider his action as Councilman Burns told colleagues today he deserves a raise in pay.

Burns said that Sands an employe of the city for eight years has been thoroughly efficient and that he is not drawing the salary commensurate with his services.

The finace superintendent pointed out that there are employes receiving higher pay than Sands who can be replaced easily but not Mr. Sands who draws $1,800 per annum.

It is reported by Solicitor White that Sands would be willing to meet council and White suggested that his salary be raised on a sliding scale basis until it reaches $2,400 a year.

Council was not unanimous in their opinion that the present is a good time to raise salaries though Burns today said that Sands is one person important to the city and entitled to an increase.

During today Councilman Burns will confer with Sands and probability exists that his action will be reconsidered should councilmen feel like Burns that in Mr. Sands case he deserves a raise.

Recently council provided for an increase in salaries to several city employes. Sands was re-elected at a salary of $1,800 a year and turned in his resignation today.

Do You Know What a Women of 30 Should Weigh?

It all depends on her height of course.

If she is five feet seven inches in height she should weigh according to the best authorities 142 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 5 inches her normal weight is 134 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 3 inches she should weigh 127 pounds.

It's dangerous to be always striving to grow thin—the Adirondack Mountains and health resorts everywhere are filled with health shattered women who will tell you that it doesn't pay to be too thin.

That is why so many thousands of underweight men and women are putting their faith in McCoy's Tablets.

PETITION PRESENTED TO OPEN JUDGMENT

Petition to open judgment was presented to Judge Hildebrand in court this morning in the case of the Universal Sales company against J. W. McGregor. It is claimed that McGregor had purchased an automobile from the plaintiff and a note for $1125 was given. This note was assigned to the Lawrence Savings and Trust company. Later, the automobile was returned, and it is claimed that the sales company was to take care of the note. This was not done and judgment was entered against McGregor. He claims that he does not owe the sales company anything and asks to have the judgment opened. A rule to show cause why the prayer should not be granted was issued.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Managing Mothers

By Hazel Courtney

MRS. CARUTHERS risked strangulation on a mouthful of pins as, through the bedroom window, she saw her youngest daughter pause on the corner.

"Goodness!" she exclaimed petulantly. "I hope Valerie won't ask Minna Dale to come in. We're busy enough as it is. I don't see why Val cultivates the girl, anyway. She's nobody at all socially."

"Ouch!" returned her next eldest daughter, who was submitting to the torture of having a new gown fitted. "You needn't stick pins in me because of Val's rotten taste in chums. She didn't inherit it from your side, old dear. You have the eye of a hawk when it comes to picking out social lights."

Mrs. Carruthers shrugged weary shoulders at Miss Liscomb, who was helping her sew that day. "Not one of my daughters appreciates the sacrifices I go to and the effort I expend to keep them in the proper social circle."

"Is it so all-fired necessary?" drawled Beth, slipping into her smart woolen frock.

"Absolutely." Mrs. Carruthers' thin lips snapped on the word. "I wish, young Miss, I had had a mother to manage for me, when I was your age. I might have made a successful marriage."

"I don't see as you did so badly. Dad left you a comfortable income."

"Hmp!" snorted Mrs. Carruthers. Not before Miss Liscomb would she admit that the income had to be twisted and stretched and squeezed. "With the proper managing, I might have married a duke."

Mrs. Carruthers pronounced it "juke." She had never dropped the little mannerisms and accents that proclaimed her an "English lady." A tiny, alert woman, with an ability for managing far greater than her size suggested, she still clung to her soft, black widow's weeds, although Mr. Carruthers had been dead many years. Since she had come to Fairview, many years before, a grief-stricken widow with five lovely, half-grown daughters, she had moved in the most select circles.

Three girls had already made brilliant marriages to the sons of Fairview's finest families Lucille, who had married a mining engineer, was in Mexico; Janet in Chicago; and Charlotte and her husband wrote vivid letters from Shanghai, where he represented an oil concern.

Instead of relaxing a bit, Mrs. Carruthers doubled her efforts to make brilliant marriages for her two remaining daughters. Beth was disturbingly sarcastic about her endeavors, and Valerie had the bad taste to show a marked preference for Minna Dale's brother, whose phenomenal playing as halfback on the high school eleven was his only claim to distinction. "Why, he belongs to the poorest fraternity, and he dances atrociously," scolded Mrs. Carruthers.

"Well, I like him just the same," answered Valerie calmly.

This afternoon Valerie left Minna rather reluctantly and came slowly towards the house. She couldn't understand why Minna never wanted to come in. Minna, chuckling joyously as she danced homewards, knew well enough why the Carruthers' home held terrors for her. Every afternoon it was the rendezvous for the elite of the local fraternities. "Social bums" was Minna's scandalous term for them. They lounged about Mrs. Carruthers' comfortable living room, drank her tea, ate her choice cakes and sandwiches, and the delicious fudge which only the Carruthers girls could make.

In return, they filled the air with snatches of the lates songs and caustic criticisms of the latest books. They rushed the Carruthers girls to the fraternity dances and fought for the privilege of taking them to every social event in town. They were an essential background; the mainstay of the popularity that was synonymous with the name Carruthers. If, for a moment they suspected that behind Mrs. Carruthers' geniality lay matrimonal schemes, they would have laughed it off. Life was sweet and smooth, and the Carruthers' living room the most delightful spot in Fairview.

Just once had Minna Dale ventured into that sacred haven. She had felt wretchedly ill at ease. The brilliant epigrams had bewildered her and, although Mrs. Carruthers had been kind, Minna had felt quite keenly that she was not wanted. Never again could Valerie persuade her to go in after school.

At the end of Minna's senior year Beth Carruthers was successfully, although somewhat protestingly, married off. Two years later, while Minna Dale was away at college, she wrote Valerie how sorry she was not to be able to attend her wedding. She wished her all the happiness and good fortune in the world. She did not add that she couldn't bear to see Val married to anyone but her own precious brother Jim, who had always adored Val.

The years slipped by, with letters between the two girls farther and farther apart, until finally, they quite lost touch with each other. the Dales had moved away from Fairview. Valerie had had an announcement of Minna's marriage to doctor somebody-or-other, but had stupidly lost it and couldn't even remember the new address. Valerie was having troubles of her own that made the ungracious disregard of Minna's announcement seem trivial by comparison.

One afternoon in May, some ten years after their graduation, a luxurious limousine poked its way up the Carruthers' drive and a laughing woman jumped out, a woman so exquisitely gowned that the five former Carruthers girls, idling on the porch, had hard work to believe her the plain little girl who had been Minna Dale.

Mrs. Carruthers was most gracious. Surely, Minna hadn't married the famous Dr. Kent, whose surgical skill was world known? Minna casually admitted that she had.

"It is wonderful to see you all together again," she smiled. "The last I heard you were scattered in every corner of the globe. And you are all just as beautiful as ever. Are you staying here long?"

There was an awkward pause. Mrs. Carruthers' glib tongue endeavored to belie the odd flushes that came over her daughters' faces.

"It was so lonely without them. I just insisted they come back with the babies to pay me a long visit. It seems like old times, once more."

Minna suspected she was lying. She left, shortly afterwards, and Valerie, walking as far as the car with her, let the cat out of the bag.

"Don't believe what mother said," she whispered. "We're all home for good. Mother's brilliant marriages have come to roost, chicks and all. Lucille's husband deserted her for a nobody; Janet couldn't stand Sam's drinking; Charlotte left Bob when he got tangled up with a woman in Shanghai, and Beth's husband said she was too sarcastic to live with."

"And you?" asked Minna.

"Oh, I?" Valerie sighed. "Hal went overseas and never came back."

"Killed? Oh, my dear."

"Nope. Fell in love with a French countess. I divorced him three years ago, so he could marry her. Hope they're happy. I only married him to please mother. I never loved anyone but your brother Jim," she added, fiercely.

Minna gathered both her hands into hers. "Val, dear, I wonder if you are the reason why Jim has never married? He's coming down to spend a week-end with us soon. Can't you plan to visit us at the same time?"

Valerie swallowed the big lump in her throat. Soft, unshed tears dispelled the bitterness in her lovely blue eyes.

"Oh, Minna," she breathed joyously, "I'll come . . . I'll come."

A Phantom of Fancy

By Claire Wesson

SALLY was still aquiver with indignation as she climbed the hill path that led to the weathered cottage on the desolate, rock headland. Ned Ripley's devotion had made a jarring discord on her self-plighted ears, and she had repulsed him the more angrily that she could give no explanation of her mood. When Zi Ellis returned from this sea voyage—Sally always imagined Zi would say when he came home from a voyage, and yet he had never claimed her definitely.

Out yonder the Ghoul Rocks had commenced to blend with the shadows of the dying day, but the girl knew her keen eyes were not deceived by any phantom. Someone was moving weakly on the Rocks.

That roused Sally like a flash, for those who know the sea realize all too well the perils of its ruthless power. She turned, and caught Ned Ripley lingered at the gap in the stonewall where they had parted.

"Someone on the Ghoul Rocks Ned!" she called.

In the common cause they, too, forgot all the personal differences.

"We must beat the tide up!" muttered Ned, as he raced obliquely across the field toward the boathouse Sally would reach by another path. Five minutes later they had launched the boat and were rowing toward the Rocks that would soon be submerged by the waters of the rising tide. In the greying twilight there was no sign of a human occupant.

"I didn't see a phantom; he was desperately weak," affirmed Sally.

Landing on the Rocks presented its peculiar dangers, which Ned did not belittle as he eased the craft through the foam at the most advantageous point. Sally scrambled up the rock, and had almost given over the search when she came upon the huddled body of a man, his thighs already under the rising water and his arms closed like a vise around some spongey substance. Her stout shoes were cut and his clothes were shredded as she dragged him to the boat Ned had managed to keep in position.

Without speaking Ned Began to pull back toward the lighted windows of the weathered cottage where Sally's mother awaited their return. In all that restless desolation there was no other sign of humanness to guide them safely home. Rain was falling, wind-blown in the darkness, when Ned followed Sally up the path with the emaciated body in his arms. Within the house they recognized Zi Ellis.

Weariness and the extremity of danger through which they had just passed somehow stripped the veil from Sally's eyes. For the first time she looked upon the heart of Zi Ellis without the trappings of her distorting fancy. During the interval of effort the proportions of life had made a kaleidoscopic change before her.

"I was pretty near gone," muttered Zi. "But I can get along all right now, folks."

"If you're bound to start, I'll carry your parcel," added Ned, as Zi staggered to his feet, revived by the hot soup he had taken.

"Give it here," flashed Zi, angrily reaching for his property. "Tain't your souvenir. I sold my soul for that lump I caught sight of on the water, and pretty near cashed in into the bargain. If you think I took to the open sea alone in a small boat, and spent the kind of a time I've spent to divvy up in the end, you've got another guess coming."

There in the mellow lamp light, with the storm beginning to break around their shelter, it was easy to visualize his sly desertion from the ship, and the subsequent agony of his solitary tossing on the sea brought to a climax where death had so nearly come upon him.

"What was it?" whispered Sally, white to the lips, when he had stumbled out with the streaked lump in his arms. A gust of wind had banged the door behind him.

"Ambergris," answered Ned, starting up to follow protectively. "He is carrying a fortune of it."

"But he wouldn't share," Sally shivered.

And then she smiled, for the phantom of her fancy was dead, quite dead, and the beauty of Ned's strong, true love was beginning to stir among the ashes.

To Get Results

By Joella Johnson

EUNICE HATTON, bobbed haired and completely a la mode, patted her marcel into place and sat back to wait for the rising of the curtain. It was Rotary night at the Shelbourne Theater, and, incidentally, a new leading man was to make his appearance. Either of these added attractions was sufficient to bring forth a representative of the press, and Eunice, efficient young person that she was, carried within her calfskin bag a badge which identified her with the Daily Bulletin. Her manner was slightly bored, because she was new at the work, and boredom, that easy boredom which tokens sophistication, seemed to her just the proper attitude for the blase lady reporter.

But Eunice was young, and it would have been a very blase person indeed who could have been really bored when the curtain rose, revealing a trim young man in riding breeches, soft shirt and sombrero. It was a provoking young man, for all his trimness, a young man with a slow smile, and a good-natured squint about his gray-blue eyes. In spite of herself, Eunice's lips parted in a responsive smile, and her dark eyes squinted a bit in answer to the blue which gazed beyond her, way over her head.

Handsomer than Jack Gilbert, thought Eunice, more dashing than Fairbanks, more appealing than Barthelmess. And here was opportunity, since her assignment included an interview with this same young man after the play. So, although she yawned a bit as she examined her program, her hands trembled with nervous anticipation. Three acts later, her nervousness had frozen her hands and had nearly set her teeth a-chatter.

But it was still a blase young woman who, back-stage after the final curtain, asked to speak to Mr. Jack Gade. It was an aloof, self-confident and indifferent Eunice who, with her breath caught in her teeth, opened the dressing room door in response to a loud "Come in!"

"Good evening," said Eunice, professionally, to the broad back in the brocade dressing gown.

"Oh, good evening! Won't you sit down?" The trim young man removed a pair of shoes from the other chair.

"I'm from the Daily Bulletin," said Eunice, looking for the first time full into the provocative eyes. "I liked your performance this evening."

"Oh, I'm so glad! But then, we had a good play to work with, you know."

"Yes, I know, I'm here to get an interview with you, Mr. Gade. You know the kind of stuff—where you came from, what you've played before, and how you like the city."

"Oh, yes. But there isn't much to tell. I was on Broadway last season, you know. And I've played practically everything. And you may say I like your city. In fact," and he looked at Eunice appreciatively, "I like it more every minute."

"Oh," and the blase young lady blushed a warm pink. Then, after a second's pause, she threw down the gauntlet. "I suppose you must be rather lonesome, though. I mean, you probably don't know many people here?"

"No, I don't, and there you have my chief trouble. I've been here only a week, and we seldom meet any but theatrical people. Of course, we play every evening, but there are only two matinees a week. That leaves four afternoons to kill." He paused while Eunice waited expectantly.

"Perhaps—" he ventured.

"Yes?" said Eunice, squinting in response.

"Well, I thought you might be willing to take lunch with me tomorrow. And perhaps by then I will have thought of something more to tell you about myself. Will you come?"

"Why, yes, I have to have the interview, you see."

"Oh, is that the only reason?"

"And I liked your performance."

"Well, that's encouraging, anyway. Then, say, at the Rochester at 12? I'll meet you in the lobby."

"Very well, Good evening."

"Oh, but you haven't told me your name."

"Miss Hatton."

"Haven't you a first name?"

"Not yet."

"Tomorrow then. Good evening." The good-natured smile followed her to the door.

The sophisticated, indifferent Eunice got as far as home and shut herself in her room before she succumbed to the romantic, thrilled little girl who demanded recognition. It was this naive and imaginative person who lay awake half the night hugging herself in delight, smiling at imagined triumphs over a trim young man with a provocative smile.

It was still the second Eunice who persisted in going to the office the next morning, denying even a business-like attitude to the newspaper Eunice. And it was yet this second Eunice who smiled cheerfully at the city editor and offered a "good morning" thereby upsetting all precedents and damaging the reputation which the first Eunice had so painstakingly created. It was the second Eunice who refused to let herself be ruffled by racket or complaint, a frayed typewriter ribbon or a busy telephone line.

And when, at 11 o'clock, a messenger asked for Miss Hatton, it was still the second Eunice who tore open the envelope with nervous haste and read: "Am so sorry cannot meet you this noon. Will explain as soon as possible."

Perhaps it was the second Eunice also who sat before her typewriter and choked back the disappointed tears, which threatened to brim over at any moment and slide down to the corners of her mouth. But it was most certainly the first Eunice, the self-confident, indifferent one, who, a half hour later, called the manager of the Shelbourne Theater and asked for an appointment.

At 12:30 it was the professional Eunice also who sat at a white-topped table in a cafeteria and exchanged office chat with another efficient young woman in a tailored suit and close-fitting hat.

"Oh, my dear," said the other efficient one, "have you heard the latest? Let's see, you covered the Shelbourne last night, didn't you? Well, that new leading man—handsome, isn't he?—he's only been in town a week, but his wife is here and is going to sue him for divorce. Wonderful story. And when I was coming out of the Rochester a little while ago, after getting the list of new guests, what do you suppose? Why, I saw him at a corner table with that little Simms girl that works over at the Hoton shoe, and who was mixed up in that affair last month. My dear, what's the matter? Don't you like that salad? Well, I never liked shrimp, either."

And yet Mr. Gade, he of the provocative smile and the friendly squint, who was handsomer than Jack Gilbert, more dashing than Fairbanks, and more appealing than Barthelmess, never quite understood why, when he called in the afternoon and invited this young person to a late lunch following the evening performance, he was answered by:

"Sorry, Mr. Gade. Had to have the story, you know; so I saw your manager this afternoon. What? Lonesome? Then I should recommend you to our Lonely Hearts column. Some people get results that way."

"What size do you take, madam?"

Customer—"Well, fives are my size, but five and a half are so comfortable that I wear sixes."

It Happened to Susan

By Monte Darrell

UNCONSCIOUSLY Susan Jenkins had been letting life get ahead of her. She had been moving in but one direction, that of housewife and mother, forgetting entirely that her husband had married, first and foremost, a person. The first intimation that she had been cheating in this game of marriage came to her when her husband suggested that they invite the Blacks to dinner.

""Oh, why not have the Whittiers or the Thompsons, as usual, Ben?" Susan asked, thinking of the extras. "They are accustomed to us, and we get along comfortably."

"Comfortably!" Ben echoed, looking at her strangely. "Comfortably, yes," Comfort had begun to mean a great deal to Susan, Ben thought, as he watched his wife's placid uninterested face.

The dinner proceeded in silence for some time, until Ben said: "The new manager at the plant will be appointed some time within the next few months."

"Well, you will get it, won't you?" Susan inquired lazily. "Robert Black will remember the long years of service you have given him and the fact that you two were boyhood friends," she added.

"I don't know," Ben sighed wearily. "If we had continued our friendship, perhaps—well, there might have been a chance. Black thinks well of the new man, Dongals."

Hearing this, Susan decided to exert herself for once. "Well, we will ask them to dinner, Ben, Martha and I were good friends, once," she added reminiscently. "What do you say?"

Ben slowly shook his head. He had pictured Martha Black—Marthe she called herself now—as he had last seen her, bobbed-haired, slim, alert, vivid, awake to all the real things of the life of today; then in his imagination he had tried to place her at Susan's table, being entertained with—what? New recipes? Fall cleaning?

"No, don't ask them, Susan," he added lamely, "it would make too much bother for you."

Wondering at this sudden shift in ideas, Susan scrutinized her husband's face; something—or was it intuition—told her a part of his thoughts. The shock rather numbed her, but soon her usual complacency returned. Tomorrow night was guest night at the Guild; perhaps the dinner could be arranged then.

Yawningly, Susan rose from the table and selected the usual sensational magazine, and a box of candy, and proceeded to enjoy the evening. She noticed Ben's glances of disapproval at the cheap literature, but went on reading.

The next night's gathering but added to Susan's growing uneasiness. Forcibly it brought home to her the distance that had lengthened between herself and Marthe. As she saw Ben's eyes following that animated group, her heart throbbed sickeningly; first, with fear, then with thankfulness that, bored though he may be her husband had staunchly stood by.

It gave her a new feeling of humbleness.

In the morning, however, this feeling had given away to irritation; she was irritated that the satisfying composure of her life should be thus erupted. Seeking something to bolster up her self esteem, she decided to go downtown and buy a hat.

Clothes usually meant little to Susan; they were selected mostly for their durability. Mirrors had long since lost their appeal to her—in fact, they inspired a vague resentment for, complacent as she was, she pictured herself as she had been a girl.

This morning Susan disregarded the usual nondescript blue or black, and her eye was caught by a soft gray velour hat, with a tiny red feather jauntily setting at naught the Quaker severity. It may have been this feather, with its touch of youth's bright surety, that promised Susan to set her right with the world again. At any rate she entered the shop and requested the hat.

Because the saleswoman gave thoughtful care to her customers, she brought the hat with some doubtfulness, and adjusted it to Susan's head.

Susan turned to the mirror, brushed her eyes, looked again, then slumped over in her chair, head down, shoulders heaving. Everything was conspiring against her, even inanimate things.

The gray hat, lovely in itself, showed up the dull stringy hair, the sallow skin; the red feather emphasized the gathering wrinkles; the leaf, rose-colored sateen with flecks of black, almond green chambray smart lines betrayed the neglected sagging muscles.

The sympathizing saleswoman, taking note of Susan's apparel—good but careless—aroused her. "Come with me, dear. It's my lunch hour, but we'll do something more interesting than eating."

They entered "The Rosebud Renovating Shop." Here came restless women, tired women, lazy women, to be soothed, or stimulated, or prodded mentally, by learned psychologists, while undergoing the scientific beauty treatments.

A month later, as Susan was coming out of Madame Dercault's where she had joined a French class, she met Martha Black. Martha noted quickly the modish ensemble, the new alertness, and in her executive way instantly planned use for these new qualities.

"Will you be on the board of trustees for the new children's home, Susan?" she asked, cordially clasping hands. "I'm on it. I'll come over and tell you about it tonight—no, tomorrow night—if I may."

"Why yes—yes, do—come to dinner tomorrow night. Can you?" Susan was eager.

was eager.

Ben's old pride and confidence in his wife returned, and eventually all his old friendships and dreams.

Susan, finding the game so much more interesting, had no desire for further cheating.

The Sunbeam Quilt

By Clyde Weldon

MARTHA PRESTON stirred on the small cot. She reached for the silver watch on the chair. Half-past six! Why, she must have slept all night! She drew herself up cautiously—careful to make no sound—and peered anxiously at her husband on the bed. He was sleeping soundly and easily. Mrs. Preston slipped quietly out of bed and into the next room.

She wove the last hairpin into her coil of thick, brown hair, and unfolded a fresh pink-and-white gingham dress. She had ironed it at nearly midnight the night before because Joe liked it better than any of her others and it pleased him to have her wear it. In going downstairs she chose the front way because the carpet would muffle her footsteps.

She opened doors and windows to let in the sweet morning air. The hens were cackling in the hen coop and the little bantam rooster was practicing his new crow. Sambo, the big, black cat, got leisurely out of his basket under the kitchen table; stretched; opened a rosy mouth in a wide yawn and followed his mistress out on to the porch to take in the milk.

A folded slip was tucked under the milk jar. The bill. "Good gracious!" Mrs. Preston exclaimed. "Another month's bill and the last one still unpaid!"

There were six unpaid grocer's slips hanging on the pantry door; the last bottle of medicine had not been paid for, and now the rent.

It took no intricate arithmetic to determine the Prestons' financial status. When Joe stopped working the money stopped coming. That was all. It was five weeks now since the fever had laid him low. At first there had to be help with the nursing; an expensive man for consultation; many sickroom requisites. Their little savings were getting perilously low.

But she wasn't going to think about it at all, Joe was slowly but surely pulling back to health and strength. That was all that mattered. It was her faithful nursing, the doctor had said, that had done as much toward saving his life as he himself had done.

"He'll be weak and probably a bit childish," he told her after his yesterday's call. "Humor him. Just make him as happy and comfortable as possible. It won't be long now before he'll be up and about again."

Martha laid the breakfast tray on the table and tip-toed up to the bed. Joe was awake. He smiled up at her and held out his hand. "You look so pretty in that dress," he said weakly. "And, say, Mary, aren't there some pieces of that for the quilt?"

Though he worked 'mid the grime and dinge of iron and steel, Joe Preston was at heart an artist. His chief hobby was his flower gardens. He used every available inch of pace for them. Many people came out of their way to admire them.

Martha had started a patchwork quilt of sunburst pattern, and now in his weakness the thing became a real joy to Joe. He would have his wife lay the gay colored pieces all about him and he would point out the combinations that he wanted put together. He could hardly wait for the afternoon hour when, with Martha's morning's work done and he having finished his midday sleep, they would work together on the quilt. "Sunbeam quilt," Joe called it. "Sunburst," his wife corrected, "No-siree!" Joe declared. "Sunbeam! It's sunbeam to me, anyway."

"If it isn't just like you, Martha," her sister Susan declared, "to waste all this time on that quilt! You could get home work from the overall factory and earn quite a bit while you're dallying with that quilt."

Of the two girls, their mother had said that Martha got the beauty but Susan was a better manager.

"I know, Sue," Martha Preston replied: "but if Joe should see me doing that, it would put him right back. He isn't strong enough yet to realize what an expense it all has been. And," she added, "the quilt gives him so much pleasure. Passes the time, you know."

"Well, just the same, you ought to be earning," Susan insisted.

But grandma Noble understood. She had lived a long time and she knew a whole lot of things that sister Sue did not. She lived a little way down the street. She diligently collected scraps from her daughter's and granddaughters' dresses and little Nellie brought them over in a neat white box. And what fun Martha and Joe had sorting them out and arranging them! There was light blue percale with a tiny white and plaid gingham in orange and yellow. There was a gray Japanese crepe with gay-colored fans and small pagodas, crimson rep, linens in lilac and tan and many others.

The outside of the quilt was nearly done on the day when Joe's uncle John came to see him. Of course, Joe wanted it brought out and put on show. He had gained strength and was able to laugh with uncle John over the pastime of his convalescence.

"Well, now, see here!" uncle John exclaimed. "Get that put toogether, Martha, and let me enter it at the county fair. I'm in on that, you know, and there hasn't been a quilt entered so far that can hold a candle to that."

And so the quilt found its way to the fair. A few weeks later the Prestons opened a long business looking envelope and read that $150 had been awarded them as first prize for the quilt.

"Well, didn't I tell you all the time it was a sunbeam quilt?" Joe asked.

---

The father of the girls seemed interested in the young man and inclined to listen. "Quite so," said he. "As you know, I am not in the habit of sticking at trifles if the main purpose is straight. But which of my girls do you want?"

The young man breathed a sigh of relief and courteously replied: "Oh,

Seek To Get Permission For Signore To Remain; Case Before U. S. Bureau

By GEORGE H. MANNING
Washington Correspondent
Of The News

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.—Whether Guiseppe del Signore will be compelled to leave his home in New Castle and return to Italy depends upon the decision of the board of review of the United States Bureau of Immigration.

Congressman J. Howard Swick of Beaver Falls, and the Rev. James Charbonnier, pastor of the New Castle Methodist Episcopal church, appeared before the board Saturday and asked that del Signore be permitted to remain in this country until the close of the present session of congress in the hope that the immigration bill now pending will be passed and alter his status.

The board has reserved its decision.

Del Signore has been a resident of New Castle for four and one-half years. He is married to an American woman. He entered the United States illegally from Mexico and has been ordered deported to his native country.

Congressman Swick and Rev. Charbonnier are hopeful that the board will permit him to remain here with his family, at least until congress disposes of the measure giving husbands of American women non-quota status.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All Druggists.

"The Conquest of Worry"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Be not anxious for the morrow" (Matthew 6:34).

Read: Matthew 6:25-34.

MEDITATION: Fear often assumes the form of worry. If we think of worry as fear it may help us to conquer this besetting evil. Jesus knew its devastating influence and continually preached faith as the means of overcoming it. In a recent book entitled "Fear," Dr. Oliver remarks to one of his patients, a nervous wreck: "I'll tell you the kind of people that I do not see in my office, not as a general rule. So far as my experience goes, the people who do not seem to be assailed and poisoned by fear are those who believe and practice the Christian Religion"—the religion taught by One, "Who is still present on earth, and still walks with men." Let us experiment today by practising belief in His constant presence.

PRAYER: O God, to Thy faithfulness and good-will there is no end. Our fathers in their pilgrimage walked by Thy guidance and rested in Thy wisdom. Still to their children be Thou the cloud by day, the pillar of fire by night, leading us even onward in Thy paths. Amen.

PETER'S ADVENTURES in ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A QUEER NUT CRACKER.

Taking the butternut in his beak Nuthatch hopped along where the snow had drifted from the top of the stones and left two sharp points bare. Between these points Nuthatch dropped his butternut and pushed it down with his claw until it was firmly wedged there. Then as the boy watched him the little bird hit the butternut again and again with his bill.

Crack, Crack! The tough shell of the butternut broke after Nuthatch had given it several blows and the bird began to pick out the sweet meat.

"Have a piece?' 'asked he, offering a bit of nut to Peter but the boy shook his head.

"You will need it all for yourself Nuthatch" said he. "I am not a bit hungry and you must be starved. But thank you all the same. Do you know for all that you are so small you must have a great deal of strength to be able to do a thing like that. You used your bill exactly like a hatchet! Nut! Nuthatch! Well I declare. Now I know wher you got your name!" Nuthatch chirped merrily.

"Didn't you guess before?" asked the bird.

"I am glad you found out for yourself, without my telling you. In the first place you might not have believed that I could crack nuts with my sharp beak and in the second place anything that one discovers makes it twice as interesting. I am ever so much obliged for your kindness in helping me. If I had known that the sun had melted that sleet I need not have bothered you at all.'

"Bother me!" exclaimed the boy, "You didn't! Only I wish I might have been of some use. I didn't do a thing but hand you the butternut. I suppose you must hurry off now! Is your wife far from here?"

"Not very" chirped the little bird. "She was sitting on the trunk of that tree while we were talking and I dare say by this time she is house-hunting on her own account. She may have become tired of waiting for me.

"NUTHATCH! NOW I KNOW WHERE YOU GOT YOUR NAME"

I must take her a big piece of nut or she may be cross. Are you coming?"

"If you don't mind" said Peter. "I should like to talk more with Woodpecker'.

But when they reached the tree, Woodpecker had disappeared. Tap, Tap, Tap! The sound of hammering came to their ears.

"Seregant is on his rounds again" remarked Nuthatch. "I am afraid you can't get a word with him now, for some time."

"Well, can't I take Flicker's place?" asked a voice suddenly and Peter looking around found himself staring into the bright eyes of a fat, fluffy bird, that loked like Woodpecker but was not larger than Nuthatch.

"It is kind of you to offer Downey" said Nuthatch at once. "Two-Legs allow me to introduce you to Downey Woodpecker the smallest but most important member of the Police Force and another cousin of Seregant Flicker Woodpecker. Take him at his word and ask Downey the questions you would have put to Woodpecker."

Actress, farmer or army officer—every one of us, no matter who we are, may offend unknowingly

The truth about body odor

HOW distressing it is to meet people with body odor.

You'd certainly hate to feel you ever offended like that.

Yet no one is entirely safe from body odor. To live, we must perspire—all year round. And in winter, body odor is more noticeable than ever—because of indoor activities, warmer, stuffier rooms.

Why the offender doesn't know he's guilty

Even on coldest days, our millions of pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste each 24 hours.

This body moisture, whether visible or invisible, is always odorous. And it spares no one. Men or women—rich or poor—all may offend if they neglect precautions.

NEW CASTLE DEFEATS EVANS CITY 22-18

Locals Take Victory In Extra Session To Deadlock League Race

Captain Paul Reider And Ostrosky Give Locals Victory With Field Goals

Evans City High Puts Up Great Game Against New Castle; Section Tied Up

(Special To The News)

EVANS CITY, Pa., Feb. 27.—An inspired Evans City High basketball team came within an inch of blasting the sectional title hopes of New Castle High school here Saturday night, in the closing game of the Section III schedule. The final tally was 22 to 18, with an extra-three minute period necessary to decide the issue. New Castle High won the game when Reider and Ostrosky annexed a field goal apiece in the extra-session.

That Evans City High was primed for the battle enacted here Saturday night was evidenced in the first quarter of the game, when they tallied six points to eight for the visitors. The playing was hip and tuck at all times with the powerful red and black team forced to the utmost to keep in front of the Besnecker coached cohorts.

New Castle Takes Lead

New Castle drew away from the locals in the second quarter of the game by tallying five points to two for the Evans City boys, with Reider the stellar New Castle captain flipping four buckets through the hoops, and with Sill man and Thomas caging one field goal apiece, in addition to putting up a cast-iron defense. The score at the end of the first half favored New Castle 13 to 8. Kennedy, Abbott and D. Ripper were the scorers for Evans City in the first half of the game.

A very determined Evans City quintet took the floor for the locals in the start of the third quarter and it was not long until the New Castle boys were forced to protect their laurels. With Kennedy leading the way the Evans City team outplayed the New Castle tossers in the third quarter, which ended 13 to 12 with New Castle just barely ahead. The New Castle team tallied not a single point in the entire quarter.

The fourth and final quarter found the going rather exciting with the New Castle team managing to keep in the van by one or two points, but with the whistle ready to sound and Evans City in arears 18 to 16 Kennedy the local star forward dropped a field goal from almost the middle of the floor and the game was deadlocked at 18-18 at the end of the regulation time.

Ostrosky Breaks Deadlock

It was decided that the teams would play a three-minute extra session instead of the customary five-minute time, and after a short rest the schoolboys hopped to it again, with the battle raging fast and interesting. "Tony" Ostrosky sank the field goal that broke the deadlock, and Captain Paul Reider annexed the other field goal that gave New Castle their four-point advantage. The Evans City boys tried desperately in the closing minutes to halt the red and black rally, and grab the victory, but they could not negotiate the hoops with any degree of effectiveness.

The game was a clean one throughout, with only nine fouls being called, seven on New Castle and two on Evans City. New Castle had a thousand per-cent average in their foul tossing efforts, with Evans City annexing four out of seven attempts.

It was the twelfth victory of the league season for New Castle, and by virtue of their victory here the New Castle team went into a deadlock with Butler High for the right to represent the section at the annual Pitt stadium tourney which starts this week.

The fine game put up by the Evans City team here Saturday night more received in the first league game of the year on the New Castle floor.

Reider, Alexander and Kennedy carried away the high scoring honors of the game.

The summary:

| New Castle 22 | | Evans City 18 |
|---|---|---|

| Sillman | G | E. Ripper |
| Thomas | G | Sharer |

Sport Ritticisms

By BILL RITT

Florida is one of the best states in the union. It was discovered by the Spaniards, acquired by British, purchased by Americans and overrun by real estate salesmen.

The state has two drawbacks. It is afflicted with hurricanes and baseball rookies. But the hurricanes usually blow over in a day.

Ponce De Leon, an old Spaniard with young ideas, came to Florida to find the fountain of youth. All he found was a swamp full of live suit cases.

De Leon went around wearing a beard and a pair of tights. Florida was the wrong place for him; he should have gone to Hollywood where such things are appreciated and photographed.

When the Spaniards first came to Florida all they found were Indians. But now the Red Sox, Dodgers, Reds, Braves, Senators and Athletics have camps down there, too.

Floridans wear straw hats in midwinter and get away with it. If anybody in the north pulled that stunt they'd get a steady job cutting out paper dolls.

New Castle-Butler To Battle Friday On Pitt Stadium Floor

Section III Deadlock Will Be Played Off Friday Night At Pittsburgh

Arrange For Special Train Over P. & L. E. Lines; Tickets Placed On Sale

By "BUGS" WALTHER

Friday night, March 2, is the date set for the playoff of the Section III title game between New Castle High and Butler. The contest is scheduled for the Pitt stadium floor. Arrangements for the game were made late Saturday night following the New Castle victory over Evans City.

New Castle High school basketball team and Butler finished the Section III schedule in a deadlock with 12 victories and two defeats apiece.

Butler Surprises

At the start of the season the experts picked New Castle and Beaver Falls to battle it out for the championship, but Beaver Falls failed to show to advantage until they had dropped three league encounters and were counted out. The Butler team was the big surprise of the year. Conceded third or fourth place by those who followed the league closely, the Butler passers upset the dope bucket by well deserved victories over New Brighton, Beaver Falls and others at the start of the season, and were threats from the very first until the finish of the loop program.

New Castle and Butler have played two games this year. At New Castle the locals upset the Bernhlor coached aggregation for the first time this year by a score of 18 to 10. Recently at Butler the red and black team evened the count by dropping the New Castle team, 14 to 11. The game Friday night will be the third of the series and it is expected to be a hard contest from start to conclusion.

The winner of the game Friday night at Pittsburgh will have the right to represent the section in the annual W. P. I. A. L. tourney. The New Castle or Butler team drew a bye in the first round of elimination and the winner of the Friday game will play Monaca, winner of Section IV, on Wednesday night, March 7, according to the committee's drawings.

Arrange Special Train

Gardner announced today that arrangements have been made with the P. & L. E. railroad to charter a special train to Pittsburgh on Friday night for the play-off contest. Tickets for the game will be 50 cents if bought here in New Castle at either the high school or the Sporting Goods Store. At the stadium the tickets will be $1.00.

It will be necessary for the local officials to get at least 300 reservations for the special train. The fare to Pittsburgh on the special will be $1.75 a round trip. The train will likely leave New Castle about 5:30 o'clock. The game is scheduled to start at eight o'clock.

Should New Castle defeat Butler on Friday it will mark the third straight year that the locals have been entered in the W. P. I. A. L. tourney, and it is believed that this would be a record that few schools hold. The competition this year in the tournament is mighty keen, according to advance dope. The experts have picked Duquesne as the ultimate winner.

Coach Philip H. Bridenbaugh has ordered the team out for practice tonight, and chances are that the red and black artists will be given a severe grilling this week in preparation for the gruelling battle that is no doubt in the offing as the locals face the Butler High team in the crucial game.

If New Castle enters the tourney at Pittsburgh this year they will do so as the defending champions. It will be recalled that New Castle High won the W. P. I. A. L. last year and advanced to the semi-finals at State College.

Championship Game Tuesday

If Westminster Can Defeat Duquesne, Championship Is Certain

BLUE AND WHITE WIN 15 OF 16 GAMES

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 27.—If Westminster's fast-stepping basketball team can defeat Duquesne University here Tuesday night in the second tri-state conference game of the season between the two institutions, the conference championship race will be settled with Coach John Lawther's Titans winners of the trophy.

Westminster has three conference games to play, and it is thought by many that it will be hard to win any of them. At least one must be won in order to clinch the championship, so the Titans hope to do the trick tomorrow night at the expense of the Dukes.

To date Westminster has won 15 out of 16 games played and has won the last 13 consecutively. In tri-state conference competition, the United Presbyterians have won seven and lost none.

Delahunty, Connor, and Captain Lewis continue to lead in scoring with 204, 140, and 100 points respectively. In the 16 games already played, Westminster has scored 644 points to 306 for opponents, or an average of 40¼ points per game to 19⅛ for opponents.

Liberty Five Wins From B. & O. 24-18

The Liberty Five defeated the B. & O. team 24 to 18 in a City League game played at the Y. M. C. A. floor on Saturday night. In the preliminary game the Young "Y" team defeated the Penn-State quintet 30-28.

The Young "Y" team substituted for the Athletics against the Penn-State team and won a hard fought game by a two-point margin. The score at the end of the first half favored the Young "Y" team 14 to 7. The Penn-State team outscored the "Y" team twenty-one to sixteen in the final half of the game. Kirker, Etter, Gennock and McIntosh were the high scorers of the game.

In the Liberty Five battle the B. & O. trailed throughout the entire game, and at half time were behind 14 to 8. The Liberty Five played a snappy brand of basketball to capture the victory, that keeps them at the top of the heap in the City League. Nocera, and Diffley were the big scorers.

The summary:

| B. & O. 18 | | Liberty Five 24 |
|---|---|---|
| Gettis | F | Nocera |
| Reed | F | Hannon |
| Suber | C | Parker |
| Jones | G | Kroen |
| Diffley | G | Reiber |

Subs.—Rose, McKay. Field goals: Rose, Reed, Suber, Jones 2, Diffley 3, Nocera 3, Hannon, Parker, Kroen, Reiber. Fouls: B. & O., 4 out of 6. Liberty Five, 10. Referee—Hood.

Westminster Decisively Defeats Waynesburg

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 27.—Westminster continued its winning streak here Saturday night by defeating the Waynesburg Yellowjackets in a rather rough game by a 35-19 score. It was the 13th straight victory for Lawther's men and the seventh straight tri-state conference success for the Titans.

Waynesburg opened the game by scoring twice from the foul line before the Westminster team got under way. It was not long, however, until the Titans started to score from the field, and at half time were leading by a 16-8 margin.

The game was without a doubt one of the most thrilling which has been witnessed on the home floor this season. Everything from fast and brilliant play to floor arguments with the referee was served up for the fans in the packed gymnasium, and had Waynesburg resorted to more shooting and less fouling they might have given the United Presbyterians a run for their money. As it was, 20 fouls were called on each team, but Westminster made 15 of hers good while the Jackets were successful in turning only five into counters.

Delahunty and Connor, with 14 and 11 points respectively were the high scorers, but the excellent work of O'Donovan, Captain Lewis, and Ayers helped the Titans to gain the lead and keep it. Two players from each team were banished because of the four personal foul rule.

The lineups:

| Westminster | G. | F. | T. |
|---|---|---|---|
| O'Donovan, F | 0 | 1-3 | 1 |
| Delahunty, F | 4 | 6-6 | 14 |
| Connor, C | 3 | 5-7 | 11 |
| Lewis, (Capt.) G | 3 | 0-0 | 6 |
| Ayers, G | 0 | 3-4 | 3 |
| Witherspoon, G | 0 | 0-0 | 0 |
| Fisher, G | 0 | 0-0 | 0 |
| Totals | 10 | 15-20 | 35 |

| Waynesburg | | | |

RIVERS, TAYLOR, VIVIO AND CASPAR ON CARD

By ED FRITZ

FRANKIE RIO and Johnny Pollock, a pair of featherweights who have been punching their way to fistic recognition in tri-state ranks, return to the Old Armory tonight to settle a question of pugilistic supremacy in a six-round bout and should their last appearance here be a criterion of what fandom can expect, no spectator should be surprised should a lethal concoction be administered by either before the end of the sixth round.

Their initial debut was fruitful of science, sock and generalship and during their workouts at the Old Armory arena yesterday they revealed that they are in splendid physical condition and fit for a gruelling battle, one in which the least error is apt to accomplish either's downfall.

During the afternoon Johnny Pollock worked with Eddie Weygant, who henceforth is to manage Pollock, while Rio trained with Jimmie Dunn. Pollock flashed to good advantage while Rio gave another sample of his his ability. As a sort of finale to the act Rio and Dunn engaged in a boxing bout.

In the first bout between the featherweights Pollock inflicted a nasty gash over Rio's eye in the third round and in the sixth the ex-Sharon high football star feinted, drew Pollock into a lead then crashed his left, beating Johnny to the punch. The blow sent Pollock to the floor.

Pollock consumed all the time entitled to him under the rules, as he should, arose and as Rio rushed in to put finis to his hook, Pollock fell into a clinch which gave him extra time for his head to clear. This piece of generalship showed beyond a doubt that he knew his boxing and at the finish he was among those present.

SCIENCE, HARD SOCKS AND GENERALSHIP

Until the knockdown the battle had been a fight in which science, hard socking and generalship played feature roles. Time and again Rio was forced to miss by an inch while Pollock likewise had a number of misses chalked against his delivery. On the whole, however, Rio won through his superior cleverness, stiffer punching and knockdown.

After the battle Pollock explained that he had only had one week to reach physical condition and remarked that he is so constituted that at least two weeks' hard work is necessary for him to obtain the proverbial pink that is so essential to a fighter who faces such a cagey, fast and hard hitter as Rio.

Realizing he had been the only featherweight so far able to give Rio an acid test, Promoter Bill Jolly in a spirit of appreciation of what he believes fandom likes, signed the two featherweights to do their stuff again and it wouldn't be surprising to see either one of them hit the floor of the ring tonight.

It is reported that fans who witnessed their initial encounter have told such stories about their cleverness and generalship that not only should there be a record-breaking audience but among it will be many women who will be present at what Jolly terms "a night during which ladies have a chance to see what boxers really do."

True, there are pugilists who maul each other all over the ring and such may not be pleasing to the feminine eye, but when light boys graced with a cleverness of foot that reminds one of a terpsichorean star it is not strange that some should wish to see for themselves what boxers actually do and how they act.

In a sense, for them it will be a case of vide et crede. They have heard radio accounts and read columns of newspaper talk concerning fistic encounters and some want to see boxing. Again, there are others who do not. But this being a question of personal privilege those who desire have the opportunity to see boxing as boxing is.

BABE RIVERS LOOKS IN TIPTOP SHAPE

Joe Knell, alias Babe Rivers, a featherweight who once knocked out Kid Cangie and who later had the knockout reversed, is matched for the semi-final and methinks his opponent will be Al Taylor, as the grapevine circuit operator reports today that Georgie Ross of Pittsburgh will be among the missing tonight.

Tony Casper, who hits a la Hungarian and fights with the fury of a man who believes his bread and butter depends upon strenuous work, will meet the Pittsburgh Printer, one Nick Vivio, whom Bill Jolly discovered not so long ago. They will enter the ring weighing about 145 and come out about 140 pounds, due to heavy work.

The first encounter, or curtain-raiser (though there is no curtain to raise), will bring together Jack Drake of Sharon and Henry Slate of the West Side. Henry is a brother of Johnny and he hopes to keep the West Side on the pugilistic map by giving Jack all he wishes to handle. They are lightweights, 135 pounds.

All of the bouts are carded for six rounds but probability exists that the reputation of the Jolly Fistic circus will not be blemished by less than 50 per cent of the clashes going to a knockout. In anticipation of a record breaking crowd the doors will open at 7:30 p. m., according to Promoter Jolly.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Staff Writer for Central Press and New Castle News

"Lewis was jubilant over the outcome of the match. He promised to defend his title against any outstanding challenger any time suitable inducements were offered."

This paragraph in stories following the Strangler's victory over Joe Stecher in their world's championship wrestling match, at Kansas City, the other night, speaks volumes.

This means that, for once, in our lives, we can flock to exhibition matches and vaudeville houses to watch in action, a man who will defend his title against any outstanding challenger any time suitable inducements are offered.

Those who follow the wrestling game won't have to wait until a huge purse is offered for his appearance against a set-up.

There will be no hitch in completing the details. For the simple reason that Lewis and his manager will take full responsibility in deciding who is an outstanding challenger and what inducements are suitable.

At last we have a wrestling CHAMPION—

Who has the nerve to announce that he intends to be a WRESTLING champion, against any outstanding challenger any time suitable inducements are offered.

That the wrestling game is a gone gooseler is indicated by the financial returns from the Stecher-Lewis match.

This mach was the one "natural" that could be pulled off. The alleged bitter feeling between the two, the charges and counter-charges of double-crossing and what-not hurled for months before the fight, the general feeling that the two men represented the best in the game, and the high-powered press agent methods supplied in trying to put it over, presaged the biggest gate in the game's history. The match was counted on to strengthen the game materially by the very magnitude.

When the chair-weary spectators left the building, in the wee small hours, the gate receipts totaled between $50,000 and $60,000.

The last great wrestling championship match, staged previous to the Stecher-Lewis affair, was that memorable battle between Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt, in Chicago, in 1912. The game flourished at that time, especially in the middle west and west. Promoters had very little knowledge, however, of the high-powered methods now employed to ballyhoo matches. The merits of the match drew the crowd.

The gate receipts for that contest were $87,000.

This would indicate that the mat game has been on the decline so long that not even a match of the magnitude of the Stecher-Lewis affair could revive interest in it.

Gridiron And Court

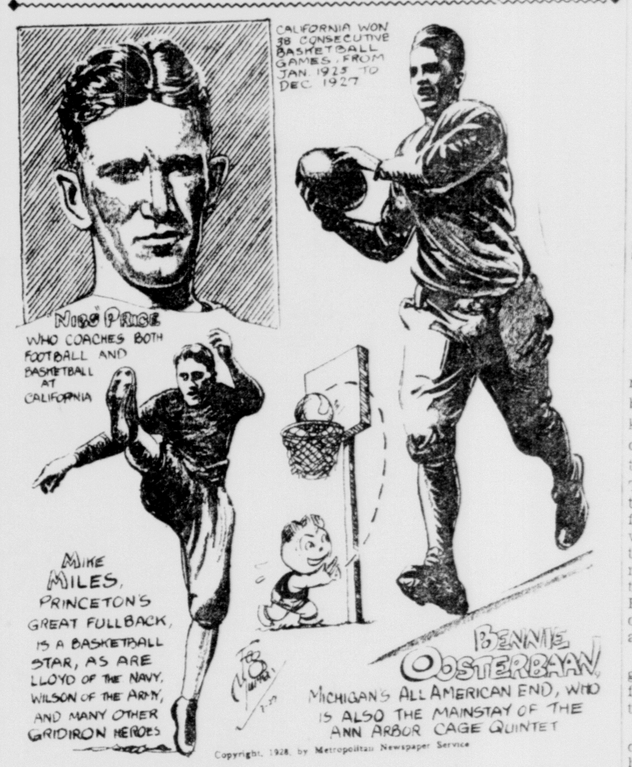
By Feg Murray



Football, which, according to many of its critics, has developed into nothing but a sort of Glorified Basketball of late years, furnishes many a star to the indoor game, which follows it closely both on the calendar and in popularity. In fact, the two sports often overlap to such an extent that one or the other suffers because the athletes cannot play both games at once.

Take the case of the University of California, for instance. Since January 30, 1925, the California basketball quintet played and won thirty-eight straight basketball games. Last fall came the post-season football game with the University of Pennsylvania on December 31. Ralph and Jim Doughery, mainstays of the cage quintet (Jim is Captain), were thus lost to the team because they were both members of the football eleven. Nibs Price, coaching both sports, was as busy as the w. k. one-armed paperhanger, and the Bears lost two court games in succession, to St. Ignatius and Southern California.

Other coaches double in brass as far as the two sports go, too. Andy Kerr at Washington and Jefferson is another mentor who teaches the young hopefuls how to shoot forward passes and baskets. Among the many football heroes who change into basketball togs along about the end of November is Bennie Oosterbaan, captain and All-American end of the University of Michigan team. Bennie's height and long reach made him a wonder at snagging passes on the gridiron, and in the gym he is equally adept as a forward on the five. And the Princeton "Casaba" team boasts of two stars who scintillated on Bill Roper's eleven. They are Miles, the full-back, and Wittmer, half-back.

Delaney-Heeney Battle Friday

First Of Series Of Eliminations To Be Fought Friday In New York City

SHARKEY-RISKO MATCHED FOR GO

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The "best man" surviving the Delaney-Heeney bout on Thursday next and the Sharkey-Risko affair 11 days later, will be dropped in with Tunney for the big title, according to the statement of Tex Rickard today, and the funny thing about that is that Rickard can't find a sharpshooter on Broadway who would bet one dollar against four that the best man will be good enough to rate the chance. The general idea is that the best here will be much like Kipling's worst; that, at the final pay off, Tunney still will have his title and another odd million or so.

This is generally regarded as a good bet, for several reasons. In fact four of them. They will meet in the two bouts mentioned.

Delaney, for example, has left some doubt of his durability, as a result of his meeting with Paulino. Heeney on the other hand, is durable but dumb. Sharkey looks like a well washed up specimen in the Heeney fight. Risko lacks championship class.

This, anyhow, is the handicapping today. It will take a clean knockout or a very glittering performance to change the rating and I would say offhand, that the deed in question would come more eligibly from either Delaney or Sharkey if there is to be a real build-up for the Tunney match. The muggs will forget the bad fights of this pair if either of them hits one over the right field wall in the pinch.

PERFORMANCE
as different as the car itself

Were greater beauty their only advantage, the new engineering principles of Dodge Brothers Victory Six would still be epochal and revolutionary.

Were greater safety The Victory's only advantage, it would still command the gratitude of a life-loving world.

Were greater economy its paramount feature, the fact would still remain that The Victory has made possible 21 miles per gallon at 25 miles per hour FOR A SIX.

But these are incidental to the basic Victory achievement. You must DRIVE the car to know about that!

Victory design is unlike that of any other vehicle in the world—and Victory performance is equally radical and remarkable.

To examine the one and experience the other will prove an event that we urge you not to postpone.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Industrial stocks moved downward at the beginning of trading today in response to the prompt reversal of the selling pressure which unsettled the list near the close of Saturday's market. A few of the active specialties were offered quite freely, and lost 1 to 3 points in the process.

On the whole, sentiment in the financial district bearish, due to the failure of important lines of business to give definite signs of expected rally, and to the general feeling that there must be a further reduction of speculative borrowings before the market is in a "healthy" condition. Unemployment at the industrial centers is felt to be a temporary matter, to be rectified as soon as important industries and units hit their proper stride.

Record for Service

Crawling on his hands and knees to look under the dressing table or the bed for a fumbled collar button is not the experience of Charles Colbrunn, St. Louis, Mo., haberdasher. Colbrunn claims the record for the oldest collar button. He bought a pair of gold ones 41 years ago, and has been using them every day since.

PIONEER'S GIFT TO POSTERITY

The opening of the Huntington library and art gallery at Pasadena, Cal., has consummated the wish of the late Henry E. Huntington, millionaire California pioneer and railroad builder, that his priceless collection of books, historical documents, manuscripts, art objects and famous paintings be forever held intact as his gift to posterity. The surrounding grounds of the Huntington estate will become a public botanical garden. Above, the front of Mr. Huntington's former home, which now is the art gallery.

Collegians End Local Conference

Y. M. C. A. Conference Delegates Appreciate Hospitality Of City

Thanking the people of New Castle for the cooperation that they showed in entertaining the delegates to the state student Y. M. C. A. conference of western Pennsylvania, a resolution of gratitude was passed at the last session of the conference, which took place Sunday afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. auditorium, according to Robert L. Meermans, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and general chairman of the local committees in charge of the conference.

"Challenging Our Best" was the subject of the talk given to the 103 delegates when they assembled for a banquet at the Y. M. C. A. dining room Saturday evening. Dr. G. D. Latshaw, national director of church relationships of New York, made the address. R. E. Johns sang several solos and the high school orchestra furnished music throughout the meal. Dean J. A. M. Stewart of Thiel college was toastmaster.

Sunday morning two sessions were held, one at the Y. M. C. A. and one in connection with the regular Sabbath services of the First Christian church. Dr. Latshaw spoke again at the church service. In the afternoon "Life, a Drama in Three Acts", together with discussions, closed the conference.

Following is the resolution which was passed at the closing session of the conference:

WHEREAS the boards of directors and the secretaries of the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian associations have generously extended all the privileges of both buildings and have toiled unceasingly to satisfy our every need, and

WHEREAS the citizens of New Castle have so graciously opened their homes and hearts to us, and

WHEREAS the committees in charge have worked with such faithfulness and effectiveness in planning the conference, and

WHEREAS L. A. Pickett has labored unceasingly and has been chiefly responsible for the efficient working out of all the details of the conference, and

WHEREAS the other speakers and leaders have given us of their best, and

WHEREAS the Hi-Y club has so readily furnished information and acted as guides, and

WHEREAS, M. A. Mahey, conference song leader; R. E. Johns, the high school orchestra and other musicians have all made such a great contribution to the conference with their respective musical ability, and

WHEREAS the several citizens of New Castle afforded us the opportunity of visiting the Scottish Rite cathedral and the Carnegie Steel mill, therefore, be it

RESOLVED that we, the delegates to the Western Pennsylvania State Student Conference of College Y. M. C. A.'s, here assembled, do unanimously extend a vote of profound appreciation to all those and others who have had a part in making possible this great occasion, and be it further

RESOLVED that a copy of these resolutions be published in the local newspaper.

COSTLIEST

Aileen Pringle

Hollywood, Cal.—Aileen Pringle, Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer star, who owns the costliest negligee in Hollywood, made of real lace from a shawl once owned by an Empress of Russia, gives her recipe for cleansing it.

"I always personally supervise the washing of it to make certain it is done in Lux suds," Aileen said.

And over at Paramount, Travis Banton, costume director for all productions, reveals that in caring for the thousands of beautiful costumes and the vast stock of fabrics in the Paramount wardrobes and sets, Lux is used . . . because it saves money by keeping all kinds of fabrics new-looking twice as long.

"We now use Lux for every bit of laundry in our vast wardrobe department. We no longer discard costumes which have lost their new look. We 'Lux' them. Lux doubles the life of sturdy fabrics as well as sheer materials," he said.

Millions of women also use Lux because its pure suds cleanse safely, keep fabrics new twice as long.

Roaming Round With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle.

This business of roaming around is not confined to any one day in the week nor is Sunday an off day. Did an hour's roaming yesterday morning in the Sunday school of the Central Christian church as a guest of the Kenneth A. Smith Bible class and the time was well spent.

Imagine if you can a Bible class composed of about 55 young men ranging in age from 18 to 24 years of age. Fellows of that age as a rule are not keen about Sunday school but they have something down in that church that draws them.

The teacher of the class is a young man himself, Harold Phelps a recent graduate of Bethany college and any one interested in such work can well envy him his opportunity. One can hardly visualize the potentialties of such a group of young men. Fifty-five live young Americans, just at an age when their energies can be turned into channels that will produce results and every one of them just daring someone to put up a job they won't tackle.

In athletics the class has produced some stars and their basketball team is leading the Church league at present. That's only one phase of their activities. There is enough latent power and ability in that group to turn over an entire city for a cause they espoused.

Bert Evans is the president of the class and it has grown so large that they must now have special quarters for them. Yesterday morning a check for $100 came to the class from a well known philanthropist of this city whose name will not be mentioned here for fear of offending.

The Sunday school of the Central Christian draws some 550 or 600 each Sunday and the very air seems to crackle with energy while the classes are on.

Here's a question for some of the old timers to settle. In one of the clubs of the city recently a wager was made recently as to who the author was of the phrase "the full dinner pale." One man said Mark Hanna, another William McKinley. Who can settle this as to when it was said, what campaign it was used in and who said it? Hurry up, let's get it answered.

Saw an interesting dollar bill the other morning in Norman Keefer's barber shop. Now any dollar bill is interesting to most of us, but this one was dated 1808 and was exhibited by John Shuster. Mr. Shuster got it in 1892 when he was working in Pittsburgh and got it on the day Coxey's Army was on its way to Washington. The bill is probably worth one hundred times its face value now but one hundred times it wouldn't buy it from Mr. Shuster.

How many of you fellows over 45 remember General Coxey and his army? They got to Washington and the authorities were at sea as to how to dispose of them. Finally charges were made against them of being on the grass. Which immortalized that phrase "keep off the grass."

Here's a line that has been missed for several days. Mark Stanley, New Castle musician who used to delight dance fans with his trumpet playing is now with the big league band of them all, Paul Whiteman. Being asked to play with Paul Whiteman is just like a ball player being signed by the New York Yankees and Mark is up among the big boys now. You'll remember how that lad used to blow that trumpet!

Foreign War Vets To Meet Tonight

There will be a regular social meeting of Harry L. McBride post Veterans of Foreign Wars in the post rooms on Neshannock tonight at 8 o'clock. Ralph Montgomery is chairman of the entertainment committee for tonight and he claims that the program and feed will far outshine anything that has been put on so far. All former marines of the fifth and sixth regiments are invited to visit the post at this time and hear a former marine, E. C. Book, tell how the marines won the war. Debate is limited to ten-minute speeches.
